VERY SUSPICIOUS.

Henry Baldwin Found on the Railroad Track With His Throat Cut.

WASHINGTON, O., March 7.—The mangled remains of Henry Baldwin were found on the railroad track yesterday and indications point strongly to murder, his throat having the appearance of being cut. He was known to have considerable money, Saturday. An empty pocketbook was found near the body.

Shot His Sweetheart.

BELMONT, Mich., March 7—L. Ecklesdafer shot and killed his sweetheart, Lena Obitz, and then shot himself through the lungs, last night. Jealousy was the cause.

The Wife of Senator Beck Dies.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Mrs. Senator Beck died here at 7 o'clock last evening, of epilepsy. She had been in ill health for a number of years, but her sudden death was not anticipated.

Don't let neuralgia and rheumatism get rooted in the system, but kill them with Salvation Oil.

Hot drinks should be avoided in cold weather. They have a tendency to weaken the lungs and throat. Take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for coughs.

NEAR THE END.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, the Great Pulpit Orator, at Death's Door—His Last Dream.

NEW YORK, March 7.—It was a weary night that the members of the Beecher household passed last night. Dr. Searle was at the post of duty without intermission until nearly 6 o'clock, when he returned to his home to snatch a few hours of rest. Mrs. Beecher had kept watch over the sick man most of the night, fearing he might pass away in her absence. She did, however, take a few hours rest on her couch in a room adjoining that where the sufferer lay. At 6 o'clock, when Dr. Searle went home, this bulletin was issued:

Mr. Beecher has been gradually failing during the night. His death is not, however, anticipated at present.

[Signed] W. S. SEARLE.

10:30 a. m.—No change in Mr. Beecher's condition since the last bulletin issued. Col. H. B. Beecher, when asked how Mrs. Beecher was, replied that she was more composed now and realized that Mr. Beecher must die.

Dr. Searle said after he left the house that Mr. Beecher's pulse and temperature were the same. He lies in a state of como and does not move. His breathing is heavy and quick, and he is perfectly unconscious, although Mrs. Beecher thought this morning he recognized her when she spoke to him.

12 m.—The condition of Mr. Beecher at this hour does not vary essentially from that given to the press last evening. The only changes perceptible are the increase of rapidity and the pulse and respirations. These stand respectively 108 and 36 to 38 per minute. The respiration is also more shallow and the temperature reaches 101 degrees. These symptoms indicate a gradual failure of vitality, which has been anticipated, and consequent slow approach of the end. This course can only be changed by the occurrence of a fresh hemorrhage, an accident which may or may not happen and the time of which cannot be surmised. There are no reasons to believe that the fatal issue will occur to-day.

NO CHANGE.

2 p. m.—Mr. Beecher's pulse is a little more rapid. There is no perceptible change.

HIS LAST DREAM.

Mr. Beecher's illness was altogether unexpected. He was in his usual good health up to last Thursday evening. He ate at night a supper consisting of half a dozen roast clams, and spent the evening playing backgammon with Mrs. Beecher. He retired early, and did not complain of feeling unwell. He, however, appeared restless after lying down, so much so that he attracted the attention of his wife. He told her he had been suffering with a severe headache all night, an affliction to which he is a comparative stranger. He vomited profusely, and said he felt a little better. Shortly after he fell asleep and slept without a break until 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. He was not disturbed during this time, as it has been his habit for years to sleep in that manner when out of sorts. He was accustomed to say that sleep was one of his grandest remedies.

Dr. Hutchinson was called by Mrs. Beecher. The doctor said to a reporter: "I reached the house at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and found Mr. Beecher sleeping. His appearance was quite natural, although I thought his face was drawn somewhat to the right side. The skin, especially of the extremeties, was cool, but not cold. I easily aroused Mr. Beecher, and he was perfectly conscious. I said to him: 'You've slept so long that your wife became worried and sent for me.'

"'Yes,' he responded, 'I have slept a good while. I've been dreaming. It was rather a pleasant sort of dream, too. You know I have always been a great dreamer.'

"'And what was your dream?' I asked.

"'I thought,' was the reply, 'that I had been and my wife a dutchess. I dreamed we had a large amount of property invested in British consuls, and I've been trying all night to figure out the income. You know, doctor, that arithmetic has always been a source of trouble to me.'"

The doctor continued. "I took my patient's pulse. It was about eighty degrees and I thought it was too full and too hard. He was lying on his back and he moved all his limbs with apparent freedom. His symptoms are much the same as he has been accustomed to in attacks of indigestion or biliousness, and both myself and the family concluded that nothing more serious was threatened. I prescribed appropriate remedies and left, not having been in the house more than half an hour. I called again, however, at 10 o'clock the same evening. At that time I found the pulse much better. It was softer and somewhat reduced in frequency. I observed, however, that Mr. Beecher's articulation was thick. He seemed drowsy but answered questions readily. He seemed, on the whole, better than in the afternoon. I was, however, apprehensive that his condition was more serious than it appeared on the surface, and when I left it was with the injunction that I be called at once if there was any change in the patient's condition. Mr. Beecher's son, William, stayed at the bedside with his mother till midnight and then retired. Mr. Beecher was on the alert all night long. The family did not see fit to call me till 8 o'clock this morning and the moment I arrived I saw that there had been a

DECIDED CHANGE FOR THE WORSE.

There was partial paralysis of the entire left side, it being most marked in the arm and hand. The grasp of the right hand was as vigorous as ever, but that of the left was almost imperceptible. The left leg was not as much paralyzed as the arm, and the sensation of both arm and leg appeared perfect.

"'Can you move your left arm?' I asked Mr. Beecher.

"'Oh yes,' he replied, 'I can touch my head with my hand.'

"He tried to do so and found that he could not and it seemed to annoy him. All this time he was exceedingly drowsy. When asked a question he would reply, and then re-drop into the drowsy state. He was not in a comatose condition by any means. His pupils were contracted, but they responded well to the light. When asked to put out his tongue it was only partially produced, and that with evident difficulty. His temperature was 99 degrees, about half a degree above the normal. His pulse was 90, when it is usually from 70 to 79. His respiration was normal and much like that of a man asleep. His general action was like that of a man aroused from a deep slumber. He said his head still pained him; that there was a boring pain in the right of his head, and his brain was sore. Frequently he carried his right hand involuntarily to his head, as if it pained him. I pronounced his case one of apoplexy and sent for

of New York. I took Mrs. Beecher and William aside and told them how serious the case was. They were incredulous at first, and thought it impossible, as the symptoms were so much like what they had been accustomed to in times past. Mrs. Beecher was overcome with grief when she fully realized the truth, but bore up bravely when encouraged by her son.

CANNOT LIVE LONG.

The probability is that Mr. Beecher will not get well, although the case is not entirely hopeless. If he should get well, it is still more strongly probable that his mental and physical powers will be very much impaired."

"What do you think was the direct or immediate cause, if any, of this attack? Was it all connected with Mr. Beecher's habits of life?"

"Mr. Beecher's habits of life had nothing to do with it," said the doctor. "He is just the kind of a man who might be expected to be attacked in this way. As for his habits, I have lived with him frequently, and have always found him very abstemious. He is just the man you might expect to die of cerebral hemorrhage. He may live a week. You must always bear in mind, however, that it is impossible to fix the time. The failure of the vital force may be gradual or more or less extended, and again some developed system may end all abruptly. Remember, all this is based on the idea that the attack is fatal. There is a chance of recovery, although doubtful."

WILL NOT SYMPATHIZE.

CHICAGO, March 7.—At the weekly meeting of the Congregational ministers this morning resolutions of condolence to Mrs. Beecher, by telegraph, were opposed by a number of ministers, based on the alleged heterodoxy of Mr. Beecher's views, regarding the future salvation and punishment. An acrimonious debate ensued and finally a motion to adopt resolutions was lost.

GROUND TO DEATH.

A Young Man Deliberately Commits Suicide by Jumping Into the Machinery of a Huge Engine.

CHICAGO, March 7.—A horrible suicide was enacted at the water works on South Chicago avenue yesterday afternoon. A young man about twenty-eight, dressed like a laborer in good circumstances, entered the building containing the engines and walked deliberately about looking at the machinery. Passing to the south end of the room he leaned over the guard rail and for some moments watched the huge walking beam on the engine as it rose and fell. He glanced hurriedly about him, and while no one was near, except a small boy, deliberatly took off his hat, throwing it on the floor under the guard rail and stood for a moment as if halting in his purpose. He looked overhead and as he saw the great beam of the engine descending, he clasped his hands and threw himself into the "crank pit," beneath the head of the heavy crank shaft, His body was literally ground to pieces. There was nothing on the body by which it could be identified.

MRS. HARMON,

Grandmother of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Dies at Jackson.

DETROIT, March 7.—Mrs. Ruth H. Harmon, mother of Mrs. Folsom, and grandmother of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, died at Jackson, Mich., at 10 o'clock yesterday, where she has been living for the past ten years with her son, Mr. Harmon. She was born in 1809, and was married in 1836. She spent the greater part of her life at Batavia, N. Y., where, after the death of Mr. Folsom, Mrs. Folsom and Frankie lived with her until Frankie was old enough to attend school, when they moved to Buffalo. For the past four years Mrs. Harmon has been failing and for the past month she has failed very rapidly, being afflicted with congestion of the bowels, which her advanced age made her too feeble to recover from. Mrs. Folsom was with her for some time previous to death and the president and Mrs. Cleveland are expected to attend the funeral. She will be buried at Batavia, N. Y.

THE COMMISSION.

Morrison, Bragg and Cooley Said to Have Been Chosen by the President.

BOSTON, March 7.—A Washington special to the Herald says that it is understood that the president has definitely determined upon three of the interstate commerce commissioners, and they have all signified their willingness to accept. They are W. R. Morrison, of Illinois, chairman; General Bragg, of Alabama, democrat, and Judge Cooley, of Michigan, republican.

TA TA!

The Indiana Legislature Winds Up Its Session and Prepares to Return the Bosom of the People.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 7.—The session of the legislature practically ended Saturday and nothing of particular importance transpired then further than the refusal of the house to comply with the request of Governor Gray to send to him certain engrossed senate bills, so that they might be compared with the enrolled bills.

The session of the legislature expired to-day by limitation and everybody is preparing to leave for home to-night.

Nobody is anticipating a special session immediately although there is a general prevalent belief that one will be necessary within the next few months.

Representative Robinson appeared before the Turpie investigating committee Saturday and denied that he ever received or had been offered any money, property or other consideration for his vote and that he had ever been approached with any proposition of the kind. After the committee was through with him Robinson asked that Bertram might be called to testify, saying he understood Bertram said he had been offered $3,000 to vote for Harrison. The committee adjourned without calling Bertram.

Colonel Robertson, it seems, is not to hove a walk-away for the gubernatorial nomination next year. Another statesman, in the person of Hon. Warren G. Sayre, speaker of the revolutionists of the house, wants to be vindicated and rewarded. The Indianapolis gang of party workers are almost unanimously on his side. His nerve captured them.

THE BRAKEMEN

YOUNGSTOWN, March 7.—The situation between the officers and striking brakemen on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad is practically unchanged. Excitement was increased this morning by the conductors and brakemen in the employ of the Pennsylvania company striking, and no freights are being moved in or out of the yards.

PITTSBURG, March 7.—Only one freight train moved on the Pittsburg division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad this morning. It was a local freight and it was reported the crew had orders to leave it at Connellsville. The strike is spreading. The freight firemen joined the strikers this morning and passenger firemen are expected to be ordered out to-night. The company is receiving freight shipments this evening. The officials claim they will send out trains, but the strikers assert they will not be able to get a crew. No breach of the peace is anticipated.

Six Colored People from Indiana Lost in the Ohio River.

MADISON, Ind., March 7.—A skiff containing seven colored persons capsized in the Ohio river, near here, yesterday and six were drowned. The names of the occupants were Henry Grove with two daughters and three sons and the son of a neighbor named Brown.

Funeral of Mother Angela.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 7.—The funeral of Mother Angela, late superior of the Sisters of the Holy Cross in the United States and founder of numberless educational institutions, took place at St. Mary's, near this city, yesterday morning. After solemn requiem mass a panegyric was delivered by Bishop Gilmour, of Cleveland, Ohio. The obsequies were attended by as many members of the community as could be assembled and by numerous friends from various parts of the country. Mother Angela was a cousin of Hon. James G. Blaine and sister of Mrs. Gen. Sherman. Among those present were Emmons and Walker Blaine and Alexander Sullivan, of Chicago. The interment was at St. Mary's academy.

The Mock Murder Trial.

MARION, Ind., March 7.—The jury in the case of the state vs. Blair Mock, charged with the murder of Harry Vandevender at Huntington last November, came in Saturday night and proclaiming their inability to agree on a verdict were discharged.

Good for the Drummers.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The United States supreme court has decided it unconstitutional for one state to tax drummers or traveling salesman from another state.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Following are the weather indications:

Indiana, fair, cold weather, northwesterly winds.

Murderer Lynched.

WINONA, Miss., March 7.—Alex Crawford, the negro murderer, was taken from jail by an immense crowd and lynched.

The Religious Crusade in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The evangelistic crusade which was commenced a month ago by Messrs. Moody and Frank Murphy will be participated in for the next month, commencing last night, by Ira D. Sankey, the famous christian singer, and formerly a member of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, and his services will be held in that edifice.

A BIG ONE.

Mr. Charles E. Bond Asks Judge O'Rourke to Appoint a Receiver for the Citizens' Street Railroad Company.

This morning, Mr. Charles E. Bond, teller in the Old National bank, filed application in the circuit court for the appointment of a receiver for the property and franchise of the Citizens' Street railroad company, making a formal demand for $30,000.

The complaint is penned by Judge John Morris and traces the history of the street car line up to its present condition. The original stock and bonded indebtedness is noted and the complainant cites that the company is now insolvent. The document urges that the facilities of the company are not sufficient to give the property an earning capacity and calls attention to the necessity of a double track on Calhoun street as well as an extension of the line to the north side depot. It is known that the city is to improve Calhoun street this spring, hence it is necessary to lay the additional rails contemplated and for which the company has no funds or no means of creating any. Therefore he asks that a receiver be appointed and empowered to provide for or place the property in such shape that the improvements outlined can be made this spring and summer.

Mr. S. B. Bond and J. H. Bass came in with an answer, alleging that they hold a majority of all the bonds and concur in the prayer for the appointment of a receiver. Mr. H. M. Williams, representing the estate of the late Hon. J. L. Williams, remonstrates against the appointment of a receiver and the matter came up before Judge O'Rourke at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The matter came up and was continued until Wednesday. Mr. S. C. Lumbard is agreed on as receiver when one is appointed.

The whole proceedings means that if the receiver cannot provide monies for the contemplated improvements he will sell the property and thereby place it in new hands subject to new bonded burdens sufficient for practical purposes.

This is the biggest suit instituted for a long time and the sheriff served papers on the capitalists this morning.

THE B. & O.

The Western Union Gobbles the Opposition Line.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The stock exchange is full of stories about a deal having been made between the Western Union and Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph companies and the price. The Western Union sold higher than at any time since the December break. Heavy purchases are reported by both companies. No confirmation can be obtained of the consolidation.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The new week on stock exchange opened dull with tame and uninteresting market, which however, was generally firm. First prices showing advances of from ¼ to ½ over Saturday's closing figures.

Daily Sentinel

OFFICIAL PAPER COUNTY AND CITY.

MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1887.

BARTHOLDI has written a letter to Senator Evarts, in which he says that the Statue of Liberty will last as long as any Egyptian monument.

A GERMAN investigator found among condemned criminals 22 per cent. who were left-handed, while a comparative research among other persons showed that the proportion of the left-handed is not above 9 per cent. This is rather a sinister estimate of the morals of the left-handed people.

FRED DOUGLASS and Theodore Tilton went about Paris a great deal together and attracted much attention. They dined together at a restaurant, and a Frenchman afterward said to Mr. Tilton: "When I saw you and your brother together here, although I could, of course, understanding nothing that you said, I made up my mind from the refined modulation of your voices that you must both be orators. I should like to ask if in England it is usual to have two brothers so equally gifted and experienced in public speaking?"

"WHY did you leave Poughkeepsie?" asked Artemus Ward, in a tone of mild reproach, when a tramp struck him for a dime on Broadway. The tramp said he never heard of the place before. But there will soon be no excuse for any person being ignorant about Poughkeepsie, for there is to be a bridge across the Hudson at that point that will be nearly as immense an affair as the New York and Brooklyn bridge. Railroad trains will cross at an elevation of 212 feet above the water, and the entire length of the structure with its approaches will be about two miles. Work is advancing rapidly now.

WHEN the King of Servia was on his recent railroad journey from Nisch to Belgrade, at one of the stoppages the engine driver, Enrich Mishkolzi, was overcome by the fumes of gas escaping from the engine furnace, and would probably have succumbed had not the King noticed his condition and promptly carried him with the help of one of his chasseurs, into his private saloon carriage, where restoratives could be applied. The King himself administered cognac to the man, and also rubbed his forehead and temples with vinegar, with the result of restoring animation. At the next station the King called for a doctor, who stated hat the danger was over. On the arrival of the train at Belgrade the man was found to be still too weak to resume work. King Milan accordingly requested leave of absence for him until his health should be restored, and made him a present of 10 ducats to help him to tide over his illness.

MATT CARPENTER, who represented Wisconsin brilliantly in the Senate, at one time decided to enter the ministry, and began the study of theology. He had lost his sight for a time, and there are many old people now living in the little Western town where he spent his first ten years at the bar who can well remember the earnest prayers and eloquent talks of the young lawyer. Carpenter was then a tall, spare, black-eyed fellow, handsome as Lucifer and as dangerous. Rufus Choate sent him to New York to put his eyes under treatment, and he stuck to the law. His determination to go into the ministry was a fleeting surrender to despondency, but his old friends always cherished their dreams of his future fame as the great blind preacher of the West. It was at this period in his life that Carpenter acquired his fondness for Scripture reading, a trait which explains the simplicity and clearness of his speeches in the Senate and at the bar.

WLADIMIR KRZYZANOWSKI, one of the foreign political exiles who made their mark in the civil war in this country, died recently in New York. Gen. Krzyzanowski was born at Raznova, in Polish Prussia, in 1824. He took an active part in the attempt to re-establish Polish autonomy, and when the revolutionary schemes were crushed he fled to America in 1846. He was engaged part of the time in commercial business before the civil war broke out, and also did civil engineering work on some of the Western railroads. When Fort Sumter was fired on he organized a company of the Turner rifles, receiving a captain's commission on May 9, 1861. In September he was made Colonel of the Fifty-eighth New York Volunteers, which regiment he organized, and he served with the Army of the Potomac through the war, retiring with the brevet title of Brigadier General. For some years after the war he held military service under the Government in Alabama, Georgia, and Alaska. He was in the customs service on the Isthmus of Panama for some time, but in 1883 he was made a special agent in the New York Custom House. His removal a year or so ago met with such clamor on account of his war services that he was reinstated.

A TRAGEDY.

A soft-breasted bird from the sea
Fell in love with the lighthouse flame;
And it wheeled round the tower on its airiest wing,
And floated and cried like a lovelorn thing;
It brooded all day and it fluttered all night,
But could win no look from the steadfast light.

For the flame had its heart afar—
Afar with the ships at sea:
It was thinking of children and waiting wives,
And darkness and danger to sailors' lives;
But the bird had its tender bosom pressed
On the glass where at last it dashed its breast.
The light only flickered, the brighter to glow;
But the bird lay dead on the rocks below.

Universities in Italy.

There are twenty one universities altogether in the kingom of Italy, seventeen of which are "royal"—that is, maintained out of the funds of the state; and four "free" universities (Camerino, Macerata, Ferrara and Perugia) are maintained out of local funds. There is only one university for Piedmont, at Turin; 1 for Liguria, at Genoa; 1 for Lombardy, at Pavia; 1 for the old Venetian territories, at Padua; 2 for the island of Sardinia, at Cagliari and Sassari; Bologna, Modena, Ferrara lie near each other; Tuscany has Pisa and Siena; Rome is for central Italy; Naples is the only university for southern Italy; while Sicily has three—Palermo, Messina, Catania. Naples is attended by 3,900 students—an attendance which in central Europe is only surpassed at Berlin and Vienna. Turin has an attendance of 2,100; Rome, 1,200; Bologna, 1,160; Padua, 1,000; Pavia, 1,000; Palermo, 950; Genoa, about 800; Pisa, 600; Catania, 400.

Of the others, Modena is at the head with 270, and Ferrara at the foot with 39. Surely nothing would be lost by the amalgamation of these miniature universities. Ferrara only professes to teach medicine, mathematics and jurisprudence; Macerata, jurisprudence only. Per contra, the great Milan academy—where Ascoli teaches (one of the greatest philologists in Europe) and the Abate Ceriani is librarian of the Ambrosian—has not the rank of a university although it does more genuine university work than a dozen of the nominal universities. The same is to be said of the Institute of Higher Studies at Florence, where the teaching staff includes the historian Villari, the great Hellenist Comparetti and De Guernatis, Bartoli and Rajna—names famous all over Europe.—Chicago Times.

Smallest Commonwealth in the World.

The Lilliputian principalities of Lichtenstein, San Marino and Monaco, hitherto considered to be the smallest commonwealths in Europe, are relatively well sized territories as compared with another—the village of Rueckersdorf. For while the aforementioned states count their territories by square miles and their populations by thousands, or hundreds at least. Rueckersdorf comprises only a few square meters, and its inhabitants at the present time do not exceed fourteen.

It is situated in the eastern part of the duchy of Altenburg, about an hour's distance from the watering place of Ronneburg, ten minutes' walk from the foot of Mount Reuster, which rises to a height of 858 meters above the level of the Baltic, and from the summit of which one overlooks an extent of country of nearly sixteen square miles, subject to the sway of eight rulers.

The commune of Rueckersdorf, twelve farms with the land belonging thereto, constitute an enclave of the kingdom of Saxony, six of which farms, in alternate order, belong to Saxony and the other six to Altenburg. Thus far it is not cleared up which of these two states has the right of patronage over the church and school. In the easternmost part of the village on a steep bluff are two houses without buildings; no one knows to whom they belong, for time out of mind nobody has ever claimed them. Sick and weary of this, the population has offered itself en masse to Saxony and begged to be taxed by her, conscripted by her—anything but left out in the cold shade.—Court Journal.

Another Cholera Prevention.

The cases of cholera which occurred in the neighborhood of Mayence, prematurely diagnosed as "English" but finally identified as the terrible Asiatic cholera, frightened the good citizens of Berlin and induced the publication of a note by Professor Koch, who for the last five years has occupied a chair at the University and presided over the Hygienic institute. He it was who pronounced the "comma bacillus" to be the cause of the Asiatic cholera, and this opinion has been followed by a publication whose contents are most agreeable to the thirsty Germans and will certainly add—if such be possible—to the "Heidelberg tuns" which are daily consumed.

Koch has declared, as the result of long and thorough study, that the comma bacillus soon dies in beer. This opinion revolutionizes the former theory that the beverage was favorable to the propagation of the disease, and asserts that water is positively conducive to its spread. Beer, says the professor, is really beneficial in cases of cholera, the water ingredients being thoroughly "cooked" and the alcohol destroys the bacillus. It is a fact worthy of especial consideration, he adds, that during the cholera epidemic in Vienna in 1877 not a single case occurred in a brewery. This declaration has been hailed with delight; and were such a thing as a Brewer's Order of Merit extant Professor Koch would receive the decoration.—Berlin Cor. New York Tribune.

Volcanos in Guatemala.

A report has been sent to the government of Guatemala by Mr. Edwin Rockstrock, who was appointed to visit Totonicapan, where volcanic disturbances have occurred daily since July of last year. Totonicapan is in a valley, the drainage from which forms the River Pla, one of the affluents of the Samala. The valley is inclosed by high mountains, which attain their greatest elevation at the northeast and south. The formation is all volcanic, and the rocks are covered with volcanic dust and ashes, through which the rivulets have cut deep beds. To the south of the city there are numerous hot springs, some of which attain a temperature of 140°.

The nearest volcanoes are Cerro Quemada and Alitlan, from both of which smoke and sulphurous vapors frequently issue. Thus Totonicapan is situated in an essentially volcanic region, which by no means signifies that a new volcano must consequently form there. At a depth of some miles the conditions necessary to produce the phenomena mentioned undoubtedly exist, but this by no means indicates that a new volcano is in course of formation. It may, however, be conjectured, from the fact that the greatest activity is exhibited during the rainy season, that the water filtrates through the upper crusts and reaches the volcanic center.—Panama Cor. New York Sun.

Jack's Hour of Leisure.

Reckless of their money as sailors are known to be when on a spree, they are models of economy when at sea on a long voyage. Spare hours are devoted to mending their clothing, the sole object in selecting a patch where one is needed being to get a patch that will stand as much wear as possible. Dungaree trousers patched with a piece of a jib or topsail that has been blown to pieces are not uncommon. The pipe which Jack brings on board, if of clay, may be broken but the pieces are carefully saved and doweled together ingeniously with bits of wire. If the pipe be of wood a piece of an old tin can that has held cabin grub is obtained from the steward, and with it a neat fitting lining is made for the pipe that prolongs the existence of the wooden bowl until it has a strength that would make a longshoreman turn pale. The sailor's sheath knife cuts the tin to the right size and a marline spike helps to round it into form.

Now and then a sailor is found forehanded enough to carry material along in his clothes bag with which he can while away hours below more profitably than in making the ordinary half model pictures or engraving a sea lion's tusks. Twine for making fish nets is a favorable article for Jack to work with. The price of nets is so small in these days, however, that he does not make so much at that work as he used to do. Not long ago a sailor came ashore here after a round voyage to Portland, Ore., carrying two good tennis rackets in his hand. He had got the materials in Oregon. Not unfrequently a sailor can be found who can so manipulate a gold coin that a ring nicely polished on the outside and yet showing the name and date of the coin on the inside is produced. A marline spike and a hammer with a piece of leather for a polisher are the only tools used.

Mat making is another favorite occupation of the sailor man. He usually works with fine materials, such as silks and worsted, and the care and skill and taste with which these materials are wrought together are wonderful. Many a cabin in the vessels that enter this port is ornamented with no end of banners and mottoes for the bulkheads and mats for the table, sideboards and floors that were made by the men in their off hours, and if purchased at a fancy store would cost hundreds of dollars.—New York Sun.

Remedies for Seasickness.

Nothing can be more unreasonable than continuous seasickness. The absolute remedies are so many, the many voiced witnesses are so grave that any one who persists in being sick after the third day is simply obdurate, and I above all men.

Capt. Knight was something of a doctor and he could bring round in a day or two by water cure treatment. He succeeded on the first day that I put my feet on shore! Remedies:

Go on board with a full stomach of plain but nourishing food; do not have anything on your stomach when you embark!

Keep on deck. Do not go out of your stateroom but lie quietly on your back.

Take champagne or claret or brandy or whisky or gruel or oat meal porridge or bits of salt codfish scorched upon living coals.

Then have an iceberg along your spine; a light belt should be worn below the waist: use homœpathic remedies freely, it makes little difference of what kind; blue pills and Congress water are as good as anything.

But the best of all things is to kick the doctor out of your state room, lie still in your berth and wait for land. This is a sure cure!

There are many alleviations of this condition—the smell of bilge water, if on ship; of grease, if on a steamer; the smell of dinner, if your stateroom opens on the dining saloon; the rattle of the knives and the jolly roar of merry men at their abhorrent meals. For variety a friend will visit you and narrates his experience and recommends new torments. —Henry Ward Beecher in New York World.

The Baobab Tree in Africa.

One marked feature of the Lowanda district is the prevalence of the baob tree, that vegetable Falstaff which every one who has campaigned in the eastern Soudan will remember to have been dotted by hundreds over the burning plains of Darfur and Kordofan. A strange looking object it is, with its huge bulging barrel of a trunk and its outspread branches, irresistibly suggesting an enormously fat man who has wedged himself into a tight suit of black and is flinging his arms wildly about him in an agony of suffocation. On the uplands one meets at every turn the stiff, wiry, ponglike shoots of the "milky euphorbia," so called from the white sap which oozes from it whenever a twig is broken. But of other vegetation, thanks to the prevalent want of rain, there is little if any in the immediate neighborhood of the town.—Africa Cor. New York Times.

An Imperative Necessity.

What pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the neat housekeeper, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody, at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated, the blood purified and vitalized, the germs of disease destroyed. Scrofula, Salt Rheum, and all other blood disorders are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the most popular and successful spring medicine.

At Peru, Ind., Pat Holland, a noted character, was shot by Mrs. Ella Wise, while stoning her house. He was fatally injured. The woman is in jail.

March April May

When the weather grows warmer, that extreme tired feeling, want of appetite, dullness, languor, and lassitude, afflict almost the entire human family, and scrofula and other diseases caused by humors, manifest themselves with many. It is impossible to throw off this debility and expel humors from the blood without the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I could not sleep, and would get up in the morning with hardly life enough to get out of bed. I had no appetite, and my face would break out with pimples. I bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling, and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, O.

"I had been much troubled by general debility. Last spring Hood's Sarsaparilla proved just the thing needed. I derived an immense amount of benefit. I never felt better." H. F. MILLET, Boston, Mass.

At no other season is the system so susceptible to the beneficial effects of a reliable tonic and invigorant. The impure state of the blood, the deranged digestion, and the weak condition of the body, caused by its long battle with the cold, wintry blasts, all call for the reviving, regulating and restoring influences so happily and effectively combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me a great deal of good. I had no particular disease, but was tired out from overwork, and it toned me up." MRS. G. E. SIMMONS, Cohoes, N. Y.

"For seven years, spring and fall, I had scrofulous sores come out on my legs, and for two years was not free from them at all. I suffered very much. Last May I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken two bottles, the sores healed and the humor left me." C. A. ARNOLD, Arnold, Me.

"There is no blood purifier equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla." E. S. PHELPS, Rochester, N. Y.

From a Lumbago Sufferer, March, 1882.

103 Prince St., New York, N. Y.

I had a very severe attack of lumbago; could hardly walk. I tried a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil it relieved; I tried another, it cured me. I would not be without it if it cost $5 a bottle. C. C. SHAYNE.

From Same 4 years Later—Cured.

103 Prince St., New York, N. Y., Nov. 1, 1886.

I cheerfully confirm my statement; was completely cured. St. Jacobs Oil is the standard. I recommend it for family use. C. C. SHAYNE.

A Lumbago Sufferer—August, 1881.

210 Middlesex St., Lowell, Mass.

About two months ago I had a stitch in my back, suffered extreme pain and was unable to leave my house. I tried St. Jacobs Oil. Less than a bottle cured me. DAVID LAWRENCE.

From Same 5 Years Later—Cured.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 29, 1886.

Several years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism. I tried St. Jacobs Oil and in a few days was cured. Have not been troubled since. DAVID LAWRENCE.

From a Sufferer at 64—September, 1879.

Strasburgh, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio.

I have been afflicted with rheumatism for several years and got no relief until I used St. Jacobs Oil. By the use of two bottles I was greatly relieved. JOHN DIEFFENBACHER.

From Same 7 Years Later—Cured.

Strasburgh, Tuscarawas Co., O., Oct. 22, 1886.

I continued using your St. Jacobs and it cured me of severe backache. JOHN DIEFFENBACHER.

INDIANA NEWS.

Late Notes of Interest From Various Points in Hoosierdom.

The governor of Ohio has removed George S. Johnson, trustee of the Toledo insane asylum, and appointed John H. Doyle, of Lucas county, to the position.

The case of John Kennedy, one of the persons indicted for complicity in the alleged grain steal at the Richmond elevator, Buffalo, N. Y., last year, was yesterday put over for the term on account of the illness of an important witness.

The farm residence of Mr. Arthur Braden, situated in the western part o Jackson county, took fire Tuesday night and burned to the ground, together with most of the contents. Loss, $900; insurance, $500. Caused by defective flue.

Messrs. Almy and Heagny, of the Ithica, N. Y., glass works, are in Kokomo viewing the gas fields and railroad facilities, as well as inspecting local sand pits and various other matters connected with the manufacture of glass.

John Knapp, of Hagerstown, has been arrested and bailed in $2,000 on the charge of attempted murder. He recently gave a barber by the name of Rennegher a severe beating, which has since proved more serious than was at first anticipated.

Yesterday morning Jones Wilson, one-half mile north of Fayette, Boone county, got up and started the fires in his house and went back to bed, when he made the discovery that his wife was cold in death. She retired Wednesday night apparently in good health.

Allison Mulford, a married man of Lafayette, committed suicide yesterday afternoon, taking a dose of strychnine. He died in horrible agony. Mulford's sister was buried the previous day and her death made him very despondent, and being out of work he sought relief by strychnine.

The mysterious disappearance of Albert Wilson, aged twenty-five, was reported to the Terre Haute police yesterday. He left home Tuesday night, saying he was not well and would go to a doctor and that has been the last seen of him. He has been working at Brinkman's stave factory.

H. H. Francis, editor of the Michigan City Dispatch, has filed an affidavit with the clerk of the Laporte circuit court, charging A. T. Vreeland, a member of the common council of that city, with being a habitual drunkard, and asked that he may be adjudged to have forfeited his office and the office be adjudged vacant. The case will be heard at the April term of ocurt.

In the circuit court at Terre Haute yesterday afternoon the attorneys in the seduction suit of Rosa Lee against John Grosse, asked Judge Mack to dismiss, as it had been compromised. The court declared it was a state case which could not be dismissed, and said he would insist upon a trial. There was quite a scene in court during the discussion between the court and attorneys. The case will be tried.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

How It Was Told in Ancient Times. Love, Devotion and Tetradrachms.

"Tell me, Hiparche," quoth Diomedes, the scrivener, "tell me, by the love you bear the gods, is there this night in all Athens such delight as I, returning from my toil, have found? This kid is roasted to perfection, and the spinach more pleases the palate than the olives of Cyprus or the golden apples of Thrace. Where is to be found such wine as you this moment have with your two hands poured out? And surely where, unless it be upon the sacred mount in Thessaly, is to be heard of mortal ears such song as you, touching your lye, discourse to the plaintive spondees of Phaon's rejected lover?"

"Now, by Pallas Athene," quoth Hiparche, "you say words that are smoother and do more rejoice me than the honey of Hymettus. Yet what service can I, O Diomedes, do of which you are not more than worthy? For Eros and his seaborn mother shall bear me witness that since the time the arrow pierced my breast, kindling there the fire more subtle than that Prometheus stole, to do your will has been my soul's delight."

"Nay," remonstrated Diomedes, gently disengaging Hiparche's shapely arms from about his neck, "nay, dear wife, be not so demonstrative; see, you have spilled the wine upon my toga!"

"The gods save me!" cried Hiparche; "I had no purpose of that kind, for 'twas but this day that I, seeing you approach our house, said to myself: 'How clean is my Diomedes' attire! How well hath he preserved his toga and his buskins from the last season—surely he will not want others for months to come!'"

"By the temple, you must be blind, Hiparche mine!" cried Diomedes. "Upon this toga there are many stains both here in front and elsewhere, too, where I unguardedly have sat on benches newly painted. And, look you, how that my buskins do bag at the knees!"

"Not so, O Diomedes," quoth Hiparche. "Have I not eyes to see? Yet, even were it as you say—and so it is not—there is about you a beauty and manly grace that make all people blind to what you wear. Helas, ai, ai? 'tis not so with me—ai, ai, helas! not so with your Hiparche! It has pleased the gods to make me very human, and though I seek to be comely in your eyes I find it hard to be so. Look with your two eyes, O Diomedes, upon this flowing robe of mine and tell me is it not dowdy? By Zeus, I am ashamed to be seen wearing it in the Acropolis, the more so since but to-day Phaxylla—she whom I detest—paraded before the house clad in a new gown of Carthaginian purple!"

"By Hercules," protested Diomedes, "your robe beseems you; it hath preserved its color and hath not lost its shapeliness. I like it well, remembering that I paid Mycenas the Cretan three tetradrachms of silver starters for it."

"Nay, by that same Hercules, 'tis dowdy!" cried Hiparche, and thereupon she fell to weeping and to beating of her breast and to tearing of her hair, uttering wild oaths to Pallas Athene and calling the gods to witness that she wished she never had been born to wed a man who cared not how his wife looked so long as he himself was well clothed. Whereupon Diomedes, touched with compassion for Hiparche, drew from his purse four tetradrachms, being his week's salary, and bade her buy the raiment she desired. Now, by the dog, how are the times changed! In these degenerate days we have no semblance to Hiparche, the Athenian wife! O Zeus and ye other gods immortal, dwellers on high Olympus, how hardly hast thou dealt with posterity, preserving the like of Diomedes through all ages down to this very moment, but giving to our companionship none such as Hiparche to mulct us of our love, of our devotion and of our tetradrachms—Chicago News.

Wendell Phillips' Estate.

William I. Bowditch, of Boston, the administrator of Wendell Phillips' estate, has a little book with leather back and corners in which "Ann and Wendell Phillips" recorded the money they gave away. The grand total, inclusive of large and small sums, from 1845 to 1875 was $64,710. And yet neither of them was wealthy in the modern acceptation of the world.—Chicago Herald.

Peculiar in medicinal merit and wonderful cures—Hood's Sarsaparilla. Now is the time to take it, for now it will do the most good.

Supplementary ballots taken in Lubeck and Waldenburg, have resulted in the election of two national liberals to the German reichstag.

Professional Etiquette

prevents some doctors from advertising their skill, but we are bound by no such conventional rules and think that if we make a discovery that is of benefit to our fellows, we ought to spread the fact to the whole land. Therefore we cause to be published throughout the land the fact that Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is the best known remedy for consumption (scrofula of the lungs) and kindred diseases. Send 10 cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's complete treatise on consumption, with unsurpassed means of self-treatment. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Alonzo Richmond, a prominent citizen and cousin of the well known Dean Richmond, died in Buffalo Wednesday, aged sixty-six.

A correspondent asks: "Where can wesend to get Peck's Patent Ear Drums, an invention for enabling people to hear who are deaf, slightly or otherwise?" Write to F. Hiscox, 849 Broadway, New York, stating cause and particulars of your deafness and he will give you all the points desired. Read the following from the Medical Record: "A lecturer in one of our hospitals, while illustrating progress in medical science, introduced a deaf patient whose case baffled all medical skill and was considered hopeless. But an invention belonging to F. Hiscox, New York, having been recommended it was used with very satisfactory results, as it fully restored the hearing. It was tested in other cases and found to be more successful than any known device for the relief of deafness, as hearing lost for many years was fully restored by it. The invention is all the more satisfactory as it is out of sight and does not require to be held in position. And while it can be readily removed or inserted by the patients themselves it is withal curative in action and comfortable to wear."

MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1887.

THE CITY NEWS.

The county commissioners are in regular session.

Seymour Boyd returned from the west last night.

Pottlitzer Brothers received a car load of bananas this morning.

The council will adopt the revised ordinances to-morrow night.

Mr. B. M. Holman continues to be business manager of the Gazette.

The muster roll of the Grand Army of the Republic shows 800,000 names.

The eighth annual session of the grand council of Indiana, Royal Arcanum, will be held at Indianapolis Wednesday, March 23.

Glutting & Bauer have purchased a lot on Clinton street, between Berry and Main streets, and will eventually build an office on it.

Mayor Muhler and the city council were royally entertained at Jackson, Mich., Saturday. The crushed stone pavements up there meet with much favor.

The Business Men's exchange meets to-night. It will be an important assembly, as the exchange is to meet several gentlemen who anticipate locating manufactories here.

Dr. T. J. Dills has fittted up an elegant office at No. 17 Court street. The doctor and Mrs. Dills are preparing to occupy their handsome new home on Creighton avenue.

The largest Odd Fellows lodge in the world is Ray City lodge, of Lynn, Mass. It has 712 members. The richest is St. Louis lodge, No. 1, of St. Louis, Mo. It has over $100,000 invested funds.

Hon. Henry Monning will go to Michigan City next week. The board of directors will meet next Tuesday, the 15th, when all the present officers will be re-elected for four years. The prison now has 676 inmates, about twenty-five below the average.

It is certain now that there will be no legislation by the general assembly this year on the subject of convict labor and the matter will now have to go over for two years. The blame can justly be laid upon the republican majority of the house, who refuse to recognize the senate and thus block all attempts at law making.

The Wabash officials state that the hospital at Danville, Ill., is the only one which is to be closed, and this for the reason that it is not needed, those at Springfield, Ill., and at Peru, being alone required to properly care for the employes who are sick or injured, and being the most conveniently located. The value of these hospitals is shown in the fact that in the year 1886 an average of fifteen patients per day were cared for, and 8,000 perscriptions were given employes, it being the custom if an employe is taken ill at any point on the road to send in for medicine, men often being somewhat ill, but not sick enough to go to the hospital.

Wherever Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels are known, the Weston Brothers, comedians and musical specialists, are known as one of the funniest and most popular features of that organization. This season the Weston Brothers have left the minstrelsy stage for the dramatic stage, appearing under the management of Charles W. Seanor, in a comedy drama, entitled "Our Minstrel Boys." The story of the play is said to be wholesome and interesting and the incidents dramatic, while the Weston Brothers, who are really remarkable as versatile musicians, are given full scope for their specialties. They appear at the Academy to-morrow evening.

There is a surplus of mud everywhere.

The water works trustees will meet to-night.

Frank Gibson has signed to travel for Schnell & Krag, of Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Hyman left for Indianapolis this morning.

Very previous gent's spring hats attract much friendly attention.

Dr. W. H. and H. S. Myers will send their patients to the St. Joe hospital.

Mrs. Mason Long went to Cartage, Missouri, this morning to meet her husband.

Nicholas Munch has sold to John H. Schone lot 345, Hanna's addition, for $2,100.

Mrs. Herman Pottlitzer and children, of Lafayette, were the guests of relatives here yesterday.

Miss Ada King, of Bay City, Mich., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. S. Brackenridge.

The Sheldon people will have another half fare excursion to the Foulke trial here Wednesday.

J. M. McConnell, the genial ticket agent of the Wabash railroad, spent the Sunday at Chicago.

Chas. Moellering and Henry Rathert will leave for Chicago to morrow to attend a college of pharmacy.

Judge Chapin to-day gave Henry McLarin et al. judgment against Nathan C. Craig et al. for $3,396.80.

Dr. Knode and George Esmond who had been in the south for some time, will be at home in a few days.

The school board have employed Fred Haiber and another man to enumerate the school children and they are now at work.

Blind Tom, the semi-idiotic musical prodigy, is on the road again, and will probably turn up here in the course of time.

Chas. Wehler has taken out a permit to erect a one and one half story frame house on lot 19, Burgess' addition, to cost $500.

Miss Maggie Staub, who has been so pleasantly entertained by her friend, Mrs. Frank Falker, returned to her Indianapolis home to-day.

The Fort Wayne delegates to the state Y. M. C. A. convention pledged $100 from their association here towards the maintenance of a state secretary.

A child of Mrs. Gertrude Ramsey, of Cleveland, died yesterday and was brought here to-day for burial. Mrs. Ramsey is a sister of Mr. R. T. McDonald, of this city.

Capt. J. B. White returned last night from Washington, D. C., where he viewed the closing scenes of congress and called on President Cleveland in company with Hon. A. P. Edgerton.

The "Clio" agent sent two car loads of scenery here last night and the party came on later from Detroit. There is fifty people in the company and next Sunday evening they open in Cincinnati for a week.

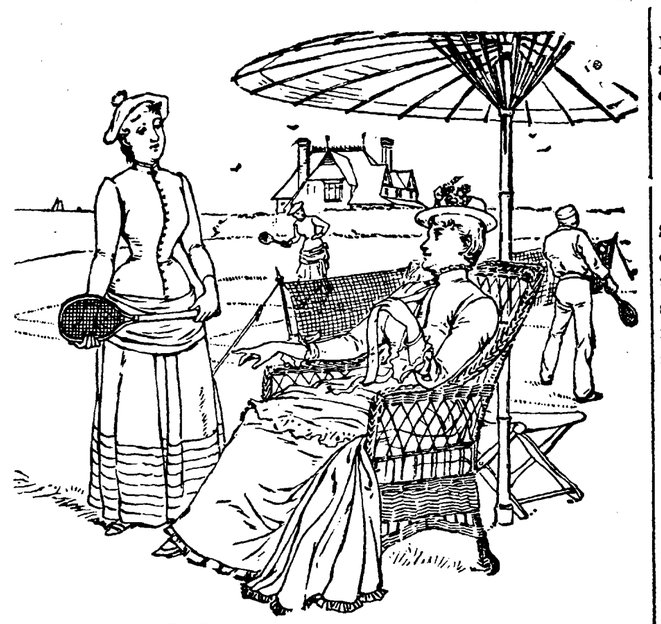

Wm. H. McDowell, charged with opening a letter addressed to Samuel Kreigh, was concluded Saturday. United States Commissioner James B. Harper held the defendant in $700 bail to appear before the United States grand jury at Indianapolis, and in default of bail he was lodged in jail at Indianapolis.

Mr. Jim Breen has been promoted as passenger conductor on the Pittsburg road and H. Wertz, late local conductor between Lima and Fort Wayne, has been promoted to construction woak and has charge of train A, working between Sandusky and Crestline. A. C. Mick has taken the local run in place of Conductor Wertz.

As matters now stand, the owners of the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago road will have to operate their own road after the 15th of this month, as the Wabash lines west of the river on that date will be taken out of the hands of the court, and it is under the receivers of that part of the Wabash system that the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago is operated.

A telegram from Columbus, Ohio, dated February 5, reads: "W. L. Parsons and John A. Carroll, of Fort Wayne, Ind., both light weight pugilists, fought here at 1 o'clock, this morning, beyond the barracks. The ring was regularly formed in the barn and the fight was witnessed by 200 people. Parsons was seconded by Jack Dewine and Carroll by Lew Morehead. In the second round Parsons was knocked out by a thump on the jugular. The fight was for a purse of $75. Skin tight gloves were used."

Bartley Campbell's great spectacular attraction, "Clio," will be seen at the Temple to-night. The Brooklyn World says there is a luxurious illustration of antique opulence and a bewitching picture of classical and choregraphical lovliness. The ballet called "Cupid and Venus," in the fourth act, is especially fine, and brings out that princess of grace, M'lle Adele Cornalba. The characters of the play are well taken throughout, with Mr. John L. Burleigh, a strong and highly romantic actor, as 'Fabian,' an artist. He looks the part to perfection, and acts it with a fire and spirit that captivates the audience.

PRESERVE YOUR COMPLEXION.

THE combination of the Oils and Alkali (Soda) must be complete to form a perfect or true soap, such as will not burn, or redden and irritate the skin. The IVORY SOAP is $99\frac{44}{100}$ % pure, which insures its being perfectly harmless, and will leave the skin clear, white and velvety.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Copyright 1886, by Procter & Gamble.

Postmaster Kaough was at Indianapolis yesterday.

Mr. Ward B. Chittenden, of St. Louis, is in the city.

The city council will have a long session to-morrow night.

D. Nestel has gone east to purchase stock for his Broadway nursery park.

Mr. G. E. Finke, of Grand Forks, Dak., is a guest of the Aveline house.

Hon. S. E. Sinclair was somewhat better to-day, but is a very sick man yet.

The legislators come home to-morrow and some people are urging the City band to come out and meet them.

Marshal Meyer ordered a suspicious party of strangers from the city this morning. He accompanied them to the train.

John Haag, the ex-Broadway grocer will be arraigned for arson in the circuit court to morrow. The evidence against him is circumstantial.

Supt. Geo. F. Felts has given the county educational rooms, in the court house, for the civil service examination to be conducted in this city, March 18.

The Fort Wayne Saengerbund last night appointed a committee of five to select a suitable site on which the society proposes to erect a magnificent hall.

The building committee of the St. Paul's Lutheran congregation have been instructed to advertise for proposals to build an addition to the school house on Barr street.

H. W. Younglove, a brakeman of the Pittsburg railroad, fell between the cars at Tollerton, Ind., last night, and had his legs crushed. His home is at Valparaiso.

The Pennsylvania railroad has prepared the schedule of east-bound and west-bound rates adopted by the pool, covering the inter-state changes and it will probably be issued at once. It has has not yet been decided whether the tariffs will be printed in the newspapers or not.

Thomas Hazely was drunk and annoyed people at the depot Saturday night. Officer Limecooley arrested the fellow who resisted and fought like a tiger. Mr. Limecooly summoned Officer Franke to his assistance and then the marshals had to club the prisoner and drag him on the sidewalk. Sore and bruised Hazely bowed to his honor this morning and was fined $10 and costs. When he boards out $21 he will be arrested on the charge of drunkenness.

There is something of a sensation just across the line from us in DeKalb county. Up there the United States marshals have arrested three men named Perry, Galloway and Grands, charged with smuggling stallions from Canada without paying the customs duty upon them. A DeKalb county man has for some time been taking parties of a half dozen or more men to Canada, and placing in charge of each a fine horse, which would be brought over under the law allowing any person to pass with one horse without paying duty. After the horses were beyond the reach of the customs officials, they would be turned ouer to the original buyer. Deputy Stein seized forty-three blooded stallions recently brought over in this way, and is looking for more.

The best physicians assure us that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a reliable and never failing remedy.

Since the introduction of Salvation Oil the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has nothing to do but to rub occasionally.

Mr. A. S. Lauferty went to Chicago at noon.

Mr. W. E. Davis was at Crestline over Sunday.

Mr. George McKinnie went to Grand Rapids this afternoon.

The Colonel Frambes' lodge of Perfection, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, hasfiled articles of incorporation for the jurisdiction of the United States and territories.

Representatives of the city are out taking a census of its population in order to enable the council to refund the bonded indebtedness at a lower rate of interest. The finance committee of the council will supervise the work every evening and see to its accuracy.

The Typographical union, at its session yesterday, elected John H. Kable, of THE SENTINEL composing room, delegate to represent the Fort Wayne union at the International Typographical union session, at Buffalo, in June. Mr. Kable was unanimously elected and will be an able representative to that body.

The King's Daughters meet at the Berry Street M. E. parsonage to-morrow evening. The society now has twenty-nine members and is constantly increasing in membership. The presiding officer is known as queen and her duties are the same as that of president of a society. They have a written constitution and on a lady becoming a member her signature is appended to the same.

THE HOGS.

Chicago Runs Behind on the Packing Business for February.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The winter hog packing season closed the last day of February. While Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City and other packing centers of the west turned out and increased the product, Chicago ran behind. The shortage, as against last season, being in round numbers 700,000 hogs. The cause of the shortage was, it is stated, the great strike at the stock yards and its direct and indirect market.

Mrs. John McNamara, of Mary street, died of puerperal fever last night.

The Temple management cheated patrons by charging $1 for fifty-cent seats.

Odell Williams and Jennie Ward, two members of the "Clio" party, were licensed to wed this morning.

Mr. R. J. Fisher has given to Mr. John Hance for the Mystic Anglers a handsome medal with the inscription, "John H. Bass to the Mystic Anglers, Fort Wayne, Ind., 1887." The gift is gold and the figure of a black bass surmounts the medal, the emblem of a net hangs from the gold piece, while two hooks extend from the sides of the shield on which is hung a minnow net. The boys are extremely pleased at the magnificent gift and this season will find them in friendly rivalry for its possession, as the angler showing the largest black bass wins the prize.

HE IS DEAD.

Henry Ward Beecher "Is no More," But His Fame Will Live For Ages--His Funeral Next Thursday.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Henry Ward Beecher died at 9:30 a. m. He bagan sinking slowly after midnight and the watchers at his bedside soon saw that the end was near. Mr. Beecher passed quietly away while asleep. He never recovered consciousness after paralysis stupefied his mind.

It is, of course, too early yet to announce anything definite about the funeral, but the interment will probably be in Greenwood. Mr. Beecher never bought a lot there, but his children and some of his grand children lie on Evergreen hill on the plat of Mrs. John T. Howard.

Mr. Beecher's twin babies died on the same day, when the afterwards famous preacher was young and poor and comparatively unknown. He was living at the time in Mr. Howard's house and was given a space on Evergreen hill. It is possible that Plymouth church or the citizens of Brooklyn at large will buy a plat and erect a handsome monument.

Those present at his death were Col. H. H. Beecher and his wife, his daughters, Hattie and Daisy, and son Henry Ward Beecher, Miss Edith Beecher, W. C. Beecher and wife, Rev. Samuel Scoville, Mrs. S. Scoville, daughter of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; Miss Scoville, who has just come from the Pacific slope; Miss Bullard, the Rev. S. B. Halliday and wife; Bella, the Scotch nurse, who has been with the family many years, and was the special favorite of the deceased preacher; the male nurse, Riordan St. White; E. A. Secomb, one of the trustees of Plymouth church, and Major J. B. Pond.

Mrs. Beecher, it is said, bore up wonderfully and with marvellous courage. No crape was hung on the door; Mr. Beecher having always objected to the use of this and the gloom associated with it in the presence of death. Instead, a magnificent wreath of flowers hung from the left side of the doorway, tied up with white satin.

The funeral will take place in Greenwood on Thursday next. Some time ago, Mr. H. W. Sage, a member of Plymouth church, appropriated, by will, a sum of money to place a statue over Mr. Beecher, in Prospect park, after his decease. Mr. Quincy Ward, the well known sculptor, who is to do the work, will make to-day a plaster cast of his features.

When the end approached the family were weeping and sobbing so they could be heard all through the house. Dr. Searle stood by the bedside holding one of Mr. Beecher's hand, and at 9:30 he said: "Mr. Beecher is no more. He is dead."

It is difficult to describe the scene at this moment, notwithstanding the fact that his death was looked for and that it had been expected hourly. It seemed to come with such crushing force that the family were perfectly prostrated with grief. They could not bring themselves to the sad realization that the kindly musical voice of the husband, father and grandfather was for ever hushed and that they had only the remembrance of his kind admonitions.

Mrs. Beecher, who had borne up so bravely from the first, and who had watched so continuously at the bedside of her dying husband, was utterly broken down and when, supported by her son, Harry, she tottered from the room, she looked as if it would not be long before she would follow her beloved husband.

The news of Mr. Beecher's death spread rapidly. As a mark of respect to his memory the flags on all public buildings were placed at half mast and Mayor Whitney had the city hall bell tolled.

HIS LIFE AND WORK.

Henry Ward Beecher was born at Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813, and came of a family distinguished in the church and literature. His father, Lyman Beecher, as a minister, was fully as celebrated as his son afterward became and was the author of a number of standard religious works. His sister, Catherine Esther, was for thirty years one of the first teachers in New England and wrote numerous books on various subjects. His brothers. Edward and Thomas, were prominent clergymen and authors. His sister. Harriett, better known as Mrs. Harriett Beecher Stowe, was the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which has had a wider sale than any other work of fiction.

Henry Ward Beecher was educated at Amherst college, graduating from that institution in 1834. He studied theology at Lane seminary and in 1837 became pastor of a Presbyterian church, at Lawrenceburg, Ind. In 1839 he took charge of a church at Indianapolis. Here his talents brought him recognition and in 1847 he received a call from Plymouth church, a new Congregationalist organization in Brooklyn. He accepted the offer and from the outset he began to acquire that reputation as a pulpit orator which he maintained and increased for forty years. Under his guidance, the congregation became the largest in America. His style was fascinating and brought to his church many communicants. He always descarded the mere conventionalities of the clerical profession. In his view, humor as well as argument and exhortation had a place in a sermon. He was fond of illustration, drawing his materials from every sphere of human life and thought, and, in his manner, he was highly dramatic. Though his keen sense of humor continually manifested itself, the prevailing impression given by his discourses was one of earnestness and thought. The cardinal idea of his creed was that Christianity was not a series of philosophical dogmas, but a rule of life in every phase. Hence he never hesitated to discuss from the pulpit the great social and political questions of the day, such as slavery, intemperance, the desire of power and the greed for gain. He was an enthusiast in music, a connoisseur in art and a lover of flowers and animals. Apart from his professional labors he was a popular lecturer in lyceums, and a favorite orator at public meetings.

Before beginning to preach, Mr. Beecher edited, in 1836, a newspaper, the Cincinnati Journal, and while pastor at Indianapols had charge of an agricultural journal, his contributions to it afterward being published under the title, "Fruits, Flowers and Farming." For nearly twenty years he was an editorial contributor to the Independent, a weekly journal published in New York, and 1861 to 1863 was its editor. His contributions to it were signed with a crossmark, and many of them were collected and published as "The Star Papers." Since 1870 he was editor of The Christian Union, a weekly paper published in New York. His regular weekly sermons, as taken down by stenographers, have been printed and published since 1859. Besides these he has published "Lectures to a Young Man," "Life Thoughts," "Sermons on Liberty and War," "The Plymouth Collection of Hymns and Tunes," "Norwood," a novel originally published in the New York Ledger, to which he was a constant contributor; "Sermons from Published and Unpublished Discourses," "Life of Christ," and "Yale Lectures on Preaching." In 1863 he visited Great Britain, with the special purpose of disabusing the British public in regard to the issues of the American civil war. His speeches exerted a wide influence and were published in London.

In 1874 came the sensational Beecher-Tilton affair which became known to all the world through the remarkable trial which followed. Of this it is not necessary to treat in detail, as its sensational features are still remembered.

Of late years Mr. Beecher has lectured much, and his liberal views upon evolution brought much criticism from orthodox circles, a fact, however, which seemed to have little effect upon the great preacher. He dismissed his critics, in his last lecture delivered, with: "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do."

In the political campaign of 1884, Mr. Beecher supported Mr. Cleveland, drawing from his political associates of a lifetime the severest criticism and abuse. Of course, he felt this, but there was that in his sunny nature which enabled him to suffer and be strong, and he gave no sign of the pain that was ruthlessly inflicted upon him. Since the close of the campaign he has not been brought before the country with greater prominence than that which has long attached to him as the greatest of America's pulpit orators, and one of the master intellects of his time.

Although in receipt of an income probably as large as that of the president of the United States, Mr. Beecher is not a rich man. His charity, which is always inclined to be on the quiet, is well known. His main possessions consist of his valuable library and an excellent farm at Peekskill, N. Y. His wife, a charming old lady, exerts no small influence in her large circle of admiring friends. His sons seem to have inherited their father's good qualities, but have chosen mercantile life in which to achieve their success.

His father, Lyman Beecher, was before him a most powerful preacher and platform orator, and Edward, his elder brother, was also noted.

GOVERNOR GRAY

Charges the Republicans With Blocking Legislation and Crippling the State Institutions.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—Governor Gray is very bitter in his criticism of the action of the republican majority of the lower house. He charges that they are directly responsible for the failure of the loan and appropriation bills; that for four weeks they had these bills before them and refused to take them up, and that they adjourned early Saturday, the last day of the session, thereby making it impossible to pass any bills. Every legislature for the past twenty years has always continued in session until 12 o'clock Saturday night, and the governors always attended the sessions to receive and sign bills as soon as passed. The present house, he says, instead of remaining in session as its predecessors have done adjourned for the express purpose of defeating all necessary legislation and embarassing the state government. This failure cripples the furnishing the new state house, the three new insane hospitals, the soldiers' monument, the soldiers' orphans' home, and the new institution of the feeble minded to be located at Fort Wayne, in addition to the proper support of the state government and the maintenance of the benevolent institutions. The senate cleared up everything before adjournment. Eighteen bills were passed and signed by the governor, and all the appropriation and other important bills would have fared likewise, but the house steadily refused to send them to the senate. The republicans declined to recognize Senator Smith for the last two weeks as presiding officer except for the purpose of securing his name to warrants for their pay.

The senate pages yesterday morning presented President Smith with a gold pen and holder, Leo Fitzpatrick and Bertie Feibleman doing the oratorical honors.

Speaker Sayre's parlors were crowded with the republican members of both houses, their ladies and others at 10 o'clock yesterday while he, in blissful ignorance of what was going on, was in another part of the building. A committee was sent out after him and when he came in, looking somewhat wild and bewildered, Representative Griffiths proceeded to present him with a beautiful gold watch, chain and charm on behalf of the republican representatives.

In the senate Saturday afternoon Mr. Sellers's $200 liquor license bill was taken up and declared passed by President Smith by a vote of 28 to 10, present and not voting 7, it being stated that the republicans were recorded as voting in the affirmative, although, as usual, they did not respond as their names were called.

The summary of bills passed by both houses and approved by the governor shows that not much has been accomplished in the way of legislation. Among these are acts of legalizing the incorporation of the towns of Bunker Hill, Tipton, Orleans, Middleburg, Huntington, Dunkirk and Pierceton. Mr. Jewett's bill requiring weekly payment to employes passed. Of the relief measures that were introduced, those were passed providing for the payment of Baker, Smith & Co. of $5,522 for steam apparatus at the insane hospital; $2,500 to W. B. Burford for printing; $500 to Levi R. Green, and other acts for the relief of Rasselas Jones, the sureties of W. K. Merrifield, Samuel Dickerson and Nathan Gillett. Among the important measures that have gone to the governor and been approved by him are the acts to establish the Indiana Soldiers' Orphan home, which carries with it an appropriation of $100,000 to erect new buildings and buy fifty acres of that portion of real estate now leased by the home; to erect the Hendricks and Colfax monuments on state grounds; to establish the Indiana School for Feeble-minded Youth at Fort Wayne, for which $50,000 for buildings, $10,000 for real estate, and $3,500 to pay teachers and maintain the children at Fort Wayne while the building is in course of construction, were appropriated; to provide for the erection of a state soldiers' monument, or monument and memorial hall, for which $200,000 is appropriated. Other bills, sent from the senate to the governor, on Saturday for his approval, and which he will probably sign, provide for the placing of the Hackelman statue in one of nitches of the capitol rotanda; $3,500 for repairing the sences and preservation of the Tippecanoe battle ground; prescribing a method of taxation of building and loan associations which exempts all but the money on hand the 1st of April of each year from tax assessment; providing for the affliction of the death penalty at the state's prisons, which requires sheriffs to take the condemned prisoners to one or the other of these prisons five days before the execution is to take place, and there is to be carried out between midnight and sunrise on the day fixed; concerning penalty for hunting in wet lands, enclosed or open, which makes it lawful for any one to hunt on these lands, notwithstanding the claims of hunting clubs to the exclusive use of the lands. Acts concerning the organization and perpetuity of voluntary associations relative to the importation of horses; authorizing cities and towns to issue bonds to refund indebtedness, referring to $200,000 of the debt of Fort Wayne, which is to be refunded at a lower rate of interest; in relation to Green River island, authorizing the governor to proceed in the federal courts toward the settlement of the claim to this Island urged both by this state and Kentucky; regulating the taking up of animals and releasing a judgment in the Lagrange circuit court; requiring payment of employes in mining and manufacturing companies every two weeks in cash, which is designed to do away with the store check system; authorizing the trustees of Jamestown to compromise tax claims and amending section 10 of the drainage act of 1885, complete the bills that have passed both houses.

In addition to these the senate passed thirty-nine bills that were not referred to the house and the house passed fifty bills did not reach the senate. There were 337 bills introduced in the senate during the session.

A BAD ONE.

Nicoll, the Tailor, Burned and Three Deaths Occur From It.

NEW YORK, March 8.—A fire occurred at 5 o'clock this morning in the store of Nicoll, the tailor, in the Bowery. Before it was extinguished it caused a loss of between $50,000 and $60,000. Trains on the elevated railroad were blocked by the flames. The blockade occurred all the way down to South ferry and on the down track up to Seventeenth street. A number of passengers undertook to walk the pathway along the track and were skaken to the street below. Three were killed and seven badly injured.

ALPENA, Mich., March 8.—This morning at Carr Bros'. shingle mill, twelve miles north of here, the boiler blew up. Emory Carr was killed instantly and Waldo Carr was fatally scalded. Eugene Carr was also badly scalded. The mill was blown to pieces.

WOMAN'S WEAKNESS.

Adam Slater Asked to Wed Louise Schmidt, Whom He Betrayed.

THE SENTINEL moralist looked into Justice Ryan's docket this morning and noted: "Louise Schmidt vs. Adam Slater, paternity proceedings."

Adam won Louise, her hand and heart, and in the courtship the girl fell from grace. The remote event began to manifest shadowy proclivities, but Adam was not inclined to take to his bosom the girl he betrayed in loves meanderings. He hesitated so long that Louise doubted and accompanied by her papa, Fred Schmidt, she began proceedings in Justice Ryan's court to compel young Slater to assume fatherly responsibilities.

The young man, who is a carriage worker employed by M. L. Albrecht, asked a continuance until Saturday, and it is probable he will wed the girl he should have shielded from the public press. There is a moral in this tale and many a young person might profit by it.

A CRUSHER!

The Chicago Wheat Pit is the Scene of a Panic and the Shorts Are Squeezed.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 8.—11 a. m.—May wheat opened at 83¼c or one-half cent higher than last night, and rose to 84½c with frantic buying by the "shorts" and heavy purchases by the "bull" operators. The market then ruled easier, sold off to opening prices and is now quoted at 83⅞c.

CHICAGO, March 8, 1 p. m.—The wheat pit has been the scene of the wildest excitement to-day that has been known for years. There is now every sign that a squeeze is contemplated for May delivery advanced to 86c, but closed at 85½c at 1 o'clock.

It is claimed that the shortage is the greatest ever known here and the statement is made that the operators here and for outside customers sold over 40,000,000 bushels additional yesterday in expectation of a big decline. San Franciscoians, New Yorkers, Cincinnatians and Chicagoians are reported back of the deal, while a large number of local dealers, New Yorkers and Englishmen are said to be "short."

The closing figures of wheat were; Cash, 80½; May, 85¼; June, 84⅛. Corn, 39⅛. Oats, 29. Rye, 51. Barley, 48. Flaxseed, $1.07@1.08. Prime timothy, $1.83@1.85. Whisky, $1.18. Pork, $20.35. Lard, 7.67½.

The Illinois Central Railway company gives notice to-day of its withdrawal from all pools. It is supposed to mean a hurried collapse of all these combined.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 8.—There is great excitement over the suspension of the Maritne bank, which closed its doors to-day. No particulars.

A GREAT SCHEME.

Proposition to Make a Twenty-Five Acre Lake on the North Side.

Quite a number of gentlemen were last evening discussing the necessity of pleasure resorts here—something to attract people to Fort Wayne. Hon. Wm. Fleming was present and remarked: "I'll give the city a lake if she desires to assist me." He proposed that the council abandon the park project on the north side, and he said if the city gave him its property over there he would purchase additional ground sufficient to make a lake covering twenty-five acres. The immense sheet of water he would supply from the feeder canal, giving to Fort Wayne one of the finest lakes in northern Indiana. A drive could be graded about the water-way and the city would always be insured a water supply if it desired to utilize it.

It is rarely indeed that such a liberal proposition is made a city, and if Mr. Fleming will let it stand for a time there will be sentiment enough aroused to accept his most desirable scheme.

The Strikes.

PITTSBURG, March 8.—The situation along the Pittsburg division of the Baltimore and Ohio road to-day is practically unchanged.

MILWAUKEE, March 8.—The job printers who, with the news printers, struck week ago, returned to their cases this morning at the old scale. The newspaper printers are still out. The pressmen returned to work yesterday.

Moody's New Church Enterprise.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The announcement is made that the $250,000 guarantee fund asked by D. L. Moody to found in Chicago a training school for missionaries has been fully subscribed. Among the subscribers are the following: John V. Farwell, $100,000; Mrs. George McCormick, $50,000; Marshal Field, $10,000, and T. W. Harvey, $10,000.

Killed a Burglar.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 8.—C. E. Sutton, who lives with his grandmother, shot and instantly killed a would-be burglar last night.

Death of Mrs. Mary O. Conger.

Died, in this city, Tuesday morning, Mrs. Mary O. Conger, aged sixty-five years. Funeral, Thursday, at 2 p. m. Services at the English Lutheran church.

Mrs. Conger is the mother of Mrs. F. A. Gorham, of Grand Rapids, and leaves a wide circle of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was universally beloved for queenly virtues.

No pen can do justice to so good a woman, nor can we too truthfully picture the grandeur of her character. Tributes sweeter and more tender than flowers will follow her to the grave.

IT is predicted that the "Star of Bethlehem" will appear this year for the sixth time since the birth of Christ. This star is said to appear directly north of the North star, and to be visible, in its dazzling light, at noonday. It is a solar orb, many times the magnitude of our sun, whose orbit is yet uncalculated by any astronomer.

PRESIDENTIAL combinations for 1888 spoken of in hotel lobbies and on the street are "Blaine and Foraker," "Hill and Holman, "Cleveland and Voorhees," "Sherman and Hiscock," Hawley and Harrison," "Carlisle and Hewitt," "Blaine and Carr," "Carlisle and Waller," and many others of a less pertinent and less permanent character.

He was never punished for it, the general verdict being that he had performed a righteous act.

PHILIP BOURKE MARSTON, the blind poet, is dead in England at the age of 36. He was the son of John Westland Marston, author of "The Patrician's Daughter," "Strathmore," and many other dramas. He has written much, and often of late years for American magazines. Personally he was an attractive and interesting man, and has been beloved by womankind ever since the day when he lay in his cradle and Dinah Maria Mulock apostrophized him in the melodious strains of "Philip, My King."

CAPTAIN PANINTINE, of the Russian army, jilted a daughter of General Lazareff and married some one else. This was regarded as such an insult by the Lazareff family that one of the young lady's brothers challenged Captain Panintine and killed him. The matter being referred to the Czar he ordered it to be tried in accordance with the Russian law, which provides that if the person who has provoked his adversary to conflict kills the latter he shall be imprisoned for six years and eight months; but that if the challenger is killed by the challenged he shall be imprisoned for only two years and six months. The interesting part in this case was to know which of the two parties should be considered to have provoked the duel; and as it was eventually decided in M. Lazareff's favor he escaped with the lesser penalty.

IN the room of a miser physician who died in New York City a few days ago were found hundreds of empty bottles and packages, which showed that for many months he had lived on the various nutritious articles widely advertised in the medical journals. This had cost him nothing, for he had taken advantage of the sharp rivalry in wares of this kind, and had written to the proprietors for samples, implying that he might require large quantities if the trial proved successful. His name appeared in the list of regular practitioners, his requests were freely granted, and he obtained all sorts of cereal foods, wines, malt preparations, koumiss, and tonics. His peculiar diet may have killed him, for he died of a gastric disease.

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

FORCING TOWNS TO MOVE.

ARBITRARY WAYS OF THE RAILROAD FOLKS IN THE FAR WEST.

A recent arrival here is Town Lot Brady, who has earned his name by his long career as a dealer in town lots. The old man is not looking as prosperous as he used to, and it is evident that times are not as they were with him. Relating his experiences last night, he said: "The town site business isn't what it was. Before the railroads came into this country I had no difficulty in calling the turn on a town every time. I knew just where they would be built. I have made the location of towns a study for more than thirty years. When I go into a new country I just look the ground over, and, taking everything into consideration, I soon come to the conclusion where the town ought to be. Ninety-nine times in a hundred, if nothing out of the ordinary happens to prevent, the town will grow just where it ought to. I've seen that tried and I know. When I have located the town site and made arrangements with a few interested parties to take hold of the matter my duty is done. I have always made it a point to take a few lots, generally on the corners, and have left the rest to the other fellows. I have been called in more than a hundred times by men who were about to locate a town and who wanted the judgment of an expert on the place to be chosen. In such cases I always demand about four of the best lots in town, and I get them, too.

ABOUT SO FAR APART.

"You can set it down as a fact that towns in a new country will be about so far apart. The lay of the land has something to do with the matter, but not so much as many people suppose. I know some of the best towns in the west that are on about the poorest sites that could be selected. You've got to take a great many other things into view. Now, if there is no railroad you must get a map and find out about how the roads are running, how far it is to the nearest one, and from what direction the first road to be built in the natural order of things will come from. When you've got that settled take a trip around the country and find out if it will support a population and what kind of a population. After that see the owners of the land lying around and try and fix up a scheme with them. If they take kindly to the notion of laying out a town you will not have any more trouble. It is easy enough to get people interested in a new town after you have found a place for it on the map. Before the days of railroads out here I made money, but I can't do it now.

"I had my pile invested in the town of Arbordale down here, and it was about the finest layout for a city that I ever saw; but when the railroad came through the managers put their tracks right through the town and announced that they would have a station four miles west of it. You see, they had bought a farm down there, and they were going to have a town of their own. When I heard of that I called on the gentlemen and remonstrated. I told them that Arbordale was the metropolis of that section and that an attempt to ignore it would bring ruin to its citizens, particularly me, but they only laughed and wanted to know about how much we would pay to have the station located there.

THEY ONLY LAUGHED.

"I was rather brash then—in fact, I hadn't so much experience as I have had since—and I told them we wouldn't give them a blame cent; we'd see their old road thrown into bankruptcy first. I threatened them with the loss of all the business of Arbordale, and asked them if they knew what a risk they were running in ignoring the best town in that section. But they only laughed, and said they were sorry that they could not make some arrangement with me. It was a rule of modern railroading to put the stations about so far apart, and as Arbordale was not in the right place for a railroad town, it would have to move up out of the wet.

"Well, sir, do you believe it, that road hadn't been running two weeks before Arbordale began to move. Everything was on wheels. The hotel went first, and then the saloons and concert halls skipped. Pretty soon the schoolhouse went, then the private houses, to be followed last of all by the church. The last time I was down there not a building remained that could be moved, and the only thing that was left to indicate the existence of the place was a lot of holes in the ground. My corner lots were all there, you bet, but as they are not worth more than $5 an acre I thought I would not bother with them. Now that trick has been played on me several times. That isn't the only town that has moved right away from me under the influence of the railroaders. They are probably the dandy town site men. I used to think that I was some in that line, but not now. And the worst of it is that ordinarily you can't reason with them at all. They know that they have got the call on you, and they work the thing for all it is worth. They want the whole hog, as I found out later on."—Nebraska Cor. New York Sun.

Daniel Webster's Intellect.

Daniel Webster always attracted crowds to the small galleries of the old senate chamber when it was known that he was to speak. The spectators would gaze intently upon his noble head, grander than the grandest in Raphael's picture of Paul preaching in Athens, and feel that they were in an uncommon presence, and they would sit entranced when his rich voice echoed through the chamber like a flood of old cathedral music. Mr. Webster's mind might have been compared to a steam engine erected at the mouth of a rich and exhaustless mine, which goes on working and working, and at every revolution of its motions brings up rich and precious ore. His vigorous intellect seized and retained everything which his disciplined taste selected to be used when occasion demanded.—Ben: Perley Poore.

The Poker Player Betrayed.

"Oh, no, your business is not such a humdrum one as you might suppose, and we have your funny little incidents just the same as other people," said the owner of a well known laundry. "I'll just bet you the good cigars," continued he, "that I can tell you every three out of five men who send their linen to our place who play poker. You may smile if you like, but it is true just the same, and I'll tell you how. Have you never sat in a little game and seen a man charge up some one at the table with a 'shy,' and mark it on his cuff. I have many a time, and we receive lots of such indications that some of our customers gamble a little occasionally."—Buffalo Courier.

WASHINGTON MARRIAGE MARKET.

A Good Place in Which to Seek Wives. How Matches Are Made.

"Washington is going to be chock full of marriageble ladies this winter," said a pretty little Southern widow the other evening. "Do you know," she continued, showing a keen interest in the subject, "that this is the greatest match making city in the universe? No? Well, it's true. More ladies come here to get married than to half a dozen other cities of the same population. It is because of the pleasant society, the beauty of the surroundings and the gallantry of the city. All the ladies want to live here; and I don't blame them. I have been coming here for three winters—but not for the purpose I mention."

"Do you think this a desirable place to hunt husbands?"

"I cannot say so," and a flit of disappointment gleamed in her blessed deep black eye and the flush mounted her velvety cheeks. "But 'tis a good place for men to seek wives. I know you must have seen that much. The ladies are handsome and accomplished, as a rule, and hundreds of them have wealth and social standing. As I said, they are smitten with the glare of the capital and the abandon of the people. If there is anything a lady likes it is ease and elegance, plenty of time and an abundance of gayety. These, with a gallant and bright husb—gentleman, make it so nice. I have attended receptions, dinners and all manner of social entertainments in Paris and London—I was educated at the capital of France—but there is nothing so lastingly pleasant as you have in Washington."

"I cannot say that there are, but you must remember that the matches made here are culminated elsewhere. The ladies come here, meet residents or visitors, court, make engagements, then go home and get married. O! its jolly, courting in Washington—so different from other places. There is romance in everything. A woman that couldn't plot an elopement here, under the glitter of the White House, the roar and bustle of the Capitol, and to the music of the dining room and ball, isn't worth having. But, seriously, I never heard of so many ladies who wanted to get married as are here now. I know them and see them everywhere I go—widows, orphans, daughters of magnates, statesmen and potentates. Lots of men come here to look for wives, but there is not one of them to ten ladies who are looking for husbands. The hotels, aristocratic boarding houses, the flats and the private residences are full of them. Scores are in every square. My! 'water, water everywhere, and none to drink!' And the discouraging feature is these ladies are becoming more plentiful every year. Great families of them come in a bunch, put up at the fashionable places or rent houses and stay the season out. An acceptable man could marry twice a week. From the inflow of familiar faces it looks like the market would be better supplied this short season than ever before."—Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.

A Curious Washington Character.

"That's Belle Boyd. You know Belle Boyd!" said the old man, taking an old painting in a gilt frame out of a dirty corner and carefully wiping the dust off, as he held it up before a reporter. "She wasn't a bad looking girl as far as looks goes." He examined it critically at arm's length. "But," he added, "she was a terror. This was taken by a famous artist while she was in the old Capitol. You know they never put her there until the war was nearly over, and I expect it was more for revenge than anything. Some of the officers, I think, were in love with her and they had a falling out. You know they said she was a rebel spy. She was a clever woman, I guess, and mighty reckless. They say she was of service to the Confederacy. This is a good picture of her. How'd I get it? I don't know. It came with the rest of the things. Look about you. I don't know how they got here. They have just accumulated."

The old man is a dealer in, or rather collector of, all sorts of old "traps." The "store" looks like an attic that has outlived many generations, or rather like a whole colony of attics. People whose daily walks take them that way often see the old man sitting in front of his door with his back to the pavement and his face turned in respectful attention to the collection of curious old pictures and books which are piled on each side of the door nearly up to the second story. Every day the pile has grown bigger, the books huddling together as if trying to look over each other's shoulders at the odd things in the windows. The old man is nearly always alone and silent. But he is not always sitting with his back to the street. Sometimes he is dusting the old books or rubbing a greased rag over the face of some oil painting that has almost passed out of sight. Occasionally some lady stops to look at the books or peep into the dark store. Sometimes they venture inside, but he never says a word, and after looking around they go away wondering at what they have seen. —Washington Star.

Dynamite Not So Dangerous.

"Dynamite is not nearly so dangerous a substance as people suppose," said Mr. Schrader, of the Atlantic Dynamite company, to a reporter. "We have been engaged for over seventeen years in its manufacture and have had but two explosions in our factory. With experienced workmen safety is almost assured. People have an erroneous idea concerning its destructive qualities. Why, it cannot compare with ordinary black powder as a destroyer. Take, for example, the attempt made to blow up the British houses of parliament. If the same amount of black powder had been used the effect would have been far more disastrous. Why? Because dynamite is instantaneous and local in its action, while powder is slower in expansion and more far reaching in its destruction. Dynamite grinds into atoms everything within its reach. Powder breaks things into pieces, but does not atomise them. Dynamite will not explode in a fire. It is exploded only by concussion."

"Then how does it happen that dynamite projectiles thrown from guns and mortars escape exploding in the concussion of the powder used in projecting them?"

"That is easily explained. At the base of the cartridge is affixed a layer of rubber which breaks the force of the concussion. It is when it strikes and the cap attached to the head of it explodes that the cartridge goes off. This is the only way that dynamite can be employed in guns. If it were used like powder it would blow the gun to atoms."—New York Mail and Express.

The Missouri court of appeals has decided that contracts and conversation over a telephone wire are binding.

Demand for Small Change.

"The demand for small bills and coins," says a Philadelphia sub-treasury official, "is such that we cannot begin to supply $1 and $2 bills as fast as they are called for, and we are away behind in the matter of small change—pennies, five cent pieces, dimes, quarters and half dollar bits. One of the peculiarities of the day is the new demand from the south and southwest for pennies. Heretofore the people in that part of the country have had no use for one cent pieces; they have rather inclined to sneer at such money; but the great growth of liveliness in trade down there seems to have changed affairs materially. And all over the country it would seem as if this demand for small currency is a fair indication that there is a boom in retail business. That would explain the demand for this new abundance of small money, a demand that the public really does not appreciate, so great is it."—Chicago Times.

Negro Generosity.

Bill Arp mentions a characteristic trait of the negro—he will divide—he never turns a fellow darky from his door. He is not going to hunt him up to feed him, but he won't refuse him. In fact, he will hide out his supplies if he can and resort to strategy. I have known one to ask another for a chaw of tobacco when he himself had a whole plug in his pocket. John killed his pig last night after dark to keep the nabors from finding out he had fresh pork, but they will get some of it. John says they can smell like buzzards, and he is bound to have right smart company next Sunday, for dey will come drappin' in shore.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Valuable Dog.

Miss de Crashville (speaking of her poodle)—He isn't an Adonis, but you know he saved papa's life once, and we think the world of him.

Mr. de Topp—Why, yes, you must. What were the circumstances?

Miss de Crashville—Well, you see, one of our neighbors threatened to shoot papa if he didn't keep Clawed out of his yard.

Mr. de Topp (interestedly)—Yes!

Miss de Crashville—Yes, and papa tied him up after that.—Tid Bits.

What is Left.

A theatrical manager says he intends to "keep on changing and improving" a certain play "until it perfectly conforms to the public demands." It is believed that if he carries out his intentions there will be nothing left of the play but a strong ballet, two or three bloodhounds, a pair of mules and about $30,000 worth of diamonds and Worth dresses.—Norristown Herald.

A Singular Southern Industry.

According to a correspondent of The New York Commercial Advertiser, the largest house in the world engaged in the collection of medicinal herbs, roots, barks, gums and berries is conducted by two brothers at Statesville, N. C.

These brothers do a business of $100,000 a year, handling more than 2,000 varieties, weighing upwards of 2,000,000 pounds. Shortly after the war they started business in a very small way. At first they dealt chiefly in ginseng, for which there is always a big demand in China. Snakeroot was also looked after, and the business grew to such an extent that the brothers secured the services of an eminent botanist.

The traffic increased, until 40,000 persons are kept busy collecting herbs and delivering them to 400 or 500 different stores scattered over some thirty counties in western North Carolina. These collectors are chiefly women, children and old men.—Atlanta Constitution.

It may save your life, for it cures your cold and cough, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents.

Mr. Robert Jutcliffe, late of Birmingham, England, now a resident of Baltimore, claims:—"For neuralgia Salvation Oil is worth its weight in gold.

A number of towns located on Long Island were slightly shaken, about 4:15 yesterday afternoon, by earthquake tremors.

How Pale You Are!

Is frequently the exclamation of one lady to another. The fact is not a pleasant one to have mention, but still the act may be a kindly one, for it sets the the one addressed to thinking, apprises her of the fact that she is not in good health and leads her to seek a reason therefor. Pallor is almost always attendant upon the first stages of consumption. The system is enfeebled and the blood is impoverished. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Medical Discovery" will act as a tonic upon the system, will enrich the impoverished blood and restore roses to the cheek.

Lawrence Barrett and his party went east on the Wabash passenger train yesterday morning.

There was too much rowdyism in the gallery at the Temple last night and Manager Simonson cannot afford to have it repeated.

The Misses Mary and Minnie Kelker very pleasantly entertained the O. C. club last evening at their residence, No. 46 East Jefferson street.

Senator J. M. Barrett yesterday telegraphed THE SENTINEL that Governor Gray had signed the bill locating at Fort Wayne the asylum for feeble-minded persons. It is now a law.

Mr. W. P. Chapman has leased the south half of Capt. J. B. White's block and will move the Adams and American express offices to that point. It is an elegant place for the express business.

Mrs. A. J. Langohr and sons, Charles and Henry, and Miss Pauline Gross, returned from Columbia City yesterday where they were at the bedside of a sick child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Langohr.

It is understood that the Nickel Plate fast freight line will be run over the West Shore instead of the New York Central, commencing with April 1. Over the New York Central only color lines will be run.

It will interest the members of the Women's G. A. R. Relief corps here to know that of the forty-seven corps of the department nearly two-thirds have indorsed the convention's action by official recoguition of the new state department, and others have sent letters pledging support.

Mr. Ulrich Stotz last night engaged a gang of men and felled the hickory pole in front of his house of call. Mr. Stotz is not "struck" on campaign poles and the emblem of democracy will no longer wave over his mansion, much to the regret of his patrons who doted to dwell on the beauties of the campaign as they fell on the genial Ulrich.

As the time approaches for the interstate law to take effect, rates begin to show signs of a general demoralization, with the understanding that the new law will steady them up again. The reason some roads have for this is that they can thus secure something of a patronage before they are shut off by the new law, and other lines are compelled to follow in order to retain their custom. There are prospects of a lively freight war this month.

Hon. Henry Monning will go to Michigan City Monday and Tuesday sits as a member of the board of directors for the last time unless Governor Gray reappoints him. The matter has not been canvassed and Mr. Monning agrees with his colleagues that if their management does not deserve endorsement at the hands of the governor they do not want it. The legislature did not reach consideration of the management of the state institutions and the retention of the present gentlemen in control remains entirely with Governor Gray, who can reappoint and reject as he pleases.

Next Thursday will be the Jewish holiday of mirth and gladness—Purim. It is one of the oldest holidays in the history of this ancient people. The event which it commemorates is familiar to every well informed person, for all have heard the story of Esther, and how her beauty saved the Jewish people. The anniversary of the event has ever since been observed by them, and the evening of that day they give to pursuits of pleasure. It is celebrated somewhat as Hallow E'en. The Hebrew boy is free to do all the mischievious things, if he is willing to take the risk of getting spanked should he go so far as to arouse parental displeasure. He generally goes about arrayed in mask and comic costume, and for his queer antics and roguish tricks expects to be rewarded with candies and fruits.

IT'S A BOOM.

The Business Men's Exchange Awakens an Interest in Developing Fort Wayne—Manufactories Offered Us.

There was altogether an important and spirited session of the Business Men's exchange last night. The seating capacity of the parlors was tested and it is no idle gossip to say that a new era is dawning on us.

Mr. E. J. Pennington, who now conducts a manufactory of wood working machines at Defiance, was at the meeting. Mr. P. A. Randall spoke for him, and said Mr. Pennington wanted to change his business first because the Defiance foundry could not supply his demands and secondly because he could build his machines cheaper in this city and enjoy better shipping facilities. He did a business last year approaching $100,000 and desired to turn in his patents, his patterns, his machines, etc., into a stock company at $15,000, if the citizens of Fort Wayne took additional subscriptions of $20,000 to erect shops and purchase ground. Mr. Pennington would guarantee by his stock that the investments in the company would pay ten per cent., leave a surplus and do a business approaching $200,000 per annum.

Quite a number of gentlemen attested to the excellence of Mr. Pennington's inventions and very promptly Mr. A. D. Cressler, Mr. P. A. Randall, Mr. John C. Peters and others asserted their willingness to head a company with a capital stock of $50,000. Messrs. P. A. Randall, E. T. McDonald, J. B. Monning and John Dreibelbiss were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions.

Mr. Frank Alderman presented for signatures a petition to the county commissioners asking them to provide for an election on the question of freeing the toll roads in the county. The petition is numerously signed by the leading property owners and will be presented to the commissioners during the present session.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. G. W. Seavy announced as a settled fact that President Metcalfe, of the Sydney (Ohio) Manufacturing company, was coming to Fort Wayne with a capital of $100,000 to establish a wholesale grocery. He added that the Sydney company was talking of transferring their manufactory to Toledo and believed that by a proper effort they could be directed here, especially in view of the fact that the president of the company will locate in Fort Wayne.

The Sydney company manufactures pots, skillets and hollow-ware. The exchange will correspond with the firm.

A Bad Week for Butler.

BUTLER, Ind., March 8.—The week just closed has been an eventful one for Butler. A row in a saloon resulted in the breaking of a $100 mirror. Kirby Smith with open knife chased Bill Reed a half mile or less down the railroad. Mrs. P. P. Iler attempted to commit suicide. The Hotel Aldrich was set on fire by an incendiary, who was caught by Mell Wilkinson while escaping, but being a powerful man, he kicked his captor and while he was unconscious, made good his escape, but the hotel was saved from destruction by timely aid and last but not least, Mr. Kennedy, of one our saw-mills, had a finger cut off by a circulara circular saw.

A certain physician was asked if he could recommeed Pond's Extract. He was silent for a moment, and then replied: "My dear friend, some of the most distinguished physicians and surgeons in Europe and America have recommended Pond's Extract for subduing Pain and Inflammation, and the Paris Medical Society reported its power over Hemorrhages of all sorts as remarkable." But you must get the genuine Pond's Extract.

The value of the cotton goods produced throughout the world is estimated at $1,750,000,000.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,

Too Good a Preacher.

"How do you like that new minister of yours?" asked Deacon Snaggs of Elder Berry.

"I'm afraid he's too powerful. We can't stand it."

"How's that?"

"Well, you see, he preached a trial sermon on salvation, and every unrepentant sinner in the audience came up in front and joined the church. So we engaged him. The next Sunday he preached on the duty of marriage, and every old bachelor and widower in the congregation hooked on to an old maid and was married before Saturday night. He got a $5 fee out of every couple. But the worst came last Sunday. He preached upon the duty of giving all to the Lord, and I hope I may never if two deacons didn't sprain their backs carrying around the contribution baskets, they were so loaded down with silver. When the congregation was dismissed it was just like leaving a faro bank—there wasn't a cent in the crowd. The house had all the money. We can't stand such eloquence."—Washington Critic.

The Toothsome Spare Rib.

"What has become of the toothsome spare rib we used to hear so much about in our infancy?" repeated a Madison street butcher as he boosted a hind quarter of beef upon a block. "The spare rib, my friend, has been tabooed in the north. For years and years it was looked upon with high favor as a dainty morsel for a Sunday dinner and Thanksgiving feast, but of late years there has been little or no demand for the 'superfluous bone.' The rest of the porker, however, finds ready sale in our markets. Throw the spare ribs away? Oh, bless you, no. Ever hear of a butcher flinging anything away? No, no. The spare ribs are shipped south by the car load, where they are highly prized by the negro. Being almost as succulent and savory as 'possum or coon, the colored people have little trouble in ekeing out a pretty fair sort of living off the despised rib, which is sold to them at a very moderate price."—Chicago Herald.

Some of the New England cotton goods manufacturers are feeling the pressure of Georgia competition.

A Slight Cold, if neglected, often attacks the lungs. Brown's Bronchial Troches give sure and immediate relief. Sold only in boxes. Price, 25 cents.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE CITY NEWS.

The municipal legislators meet to-night.

Painting on lace is the latest amateur idea.

Professor Sam Kimball is confined to his room with erysipelas.

Mr. Charley Falk was the guest of A. Salinger, at Lafayette, over Sunday.

The young people of the Christian church give a social at the parlors of the edifice to-night.

Hon. William Carr, of Columbia City, is dead. The Fort Wayne commandery will attend his funeral Friday next.

Mr. F. N. Douglass, of South Bend, has been selected and accepted the position of secretary of the state Y. M. C. A.

Drs. S. C. Metcalfe and J. S. Hetrick are at Cleveland to attend the commencement of the Western Reserve college, their alma mater.

Engineer Pardee, of the Nickel Plate, has returned from Pennsylvania. Mr. Pardee announces the return of his office clerk, Mr. J. W. Woodrow.

Tickets are going like hot cakes for the Y. M. C. A. concert. Mr. Page promises one of the best home entertainments ever given in the Temple.

A wag suggests that if the high hats continue to get much higher at theaters that parquet seats will sell for twenty-five cents and gallery seats for a dollar.

The Morton club has arranged to give Col. R. S. Robertson a reception Saturday night. Speaker Sayre, who has the gubernatorial bee in his bonnet, will attend.

The Indianapolis News says: "Mrs. R. S. Robertson and Mrs. R. J. Fisher, of Fort Wayne, were visitors at the house this morning, and held an informal reception there."

J. Geo. Strodel, Capt. C. Hettler, John Reuss, Frank Rahe and C. Schaffer, is the committee appointed to select a site for the proposed Sængerbund block referred to yesterday.

Train 78 on the Wabash broke in two at Lebanon yesterday morning in what is called the "hole." The two parts ran together, but beyond a few drawbars knocked out the damage was slight.

Billy Wilkinson's new star, Beatrice Lieb, is spoken of most flatteringly wherever she goes. She is making a great success of "Infatuation." Mr. Wilkinson used to manage the Academy.

The young men of the Berry street M. E. church will hold a meeting in the library room of the church at the close of the prayer meeting on to-morrow evening. All the young men are requested to be present.

Ida Burroughs has succeeded Lillian Lee as leading woman with W. J. Scanlan. Miss Lee is in ill health. Scanlan will ogen next season in San Francisco. He and his company will travel in a special car. Better companies walk.

The "Clio" party did not put up half of their scenery here and it is to be regretted they did not send the ballet on to Richmond with them. Such a collection of superannated females could not well be collected outside of Michigan.

Invitations are out for the marriage March 17, of Miss Frances Beighler, daughter of Mr. John Beighler, of Lafayette township, and Mr. Frederick Schearer, a worthy young farmer of Pleasant township. The young people are well and favorably known and the wedding will be quite an affair.

Elkhart has subscribed $4,000 and Goshen $3,000 to bore for natural gas. About all the other towns around us are moving in the matter. It is of interest to know that Mr. G. W. Seavy has assurance that the DePauw glass works, of New Albany, would be removed to Fort Wayne if natural gas sufficient to supply the works was secured at this point.

Mary Baker, the famous White county fasting girl, has lapsed into former condition. At the end of the 105th day the patient took bits of jelly, paregoric and water, and it was believed that she would speedily recover. Dr. Reed, of Monon, Miss Baker's physician, says no food is retained by the faster and as the flesh is wasted away, nothing now remains to sustain life. Death is again looked for at any moment. This unparalleled fast began last October.

Last evening there was organized the Arabian council of the grand order of Orient, latitude 41° composed of the members of Knights of Pythias. The following grand officers were elected: Grand orient, Chas. H. Eckert; grand vice-orient, J. M. Smith; grand past orient, Jud. M. Taylor; grand prophet, Martin M, Minch; grand herald, Harry N. Ball; grand secretary, Chas. E. Graves; grand treasurer, Louis Hazzard; grand wardsman, John Conahan; grand vidette, Geo. Oppelt; grand G. A. P., Adam Imbody.

The hay and wood market is deserted.

The new fire alarm boxes were all hung up to-day.

Judge Chapin leaves this evening for Peoria on legal business.

William S. Connett and his mother left for Denver, Col., this morning.

The Catholic Knights entertained six applications for membership, Sunday.

Treasurer Berghoff and Clerk Rockhill will submit their monthly reports to-night.

Jack Griffin and John Reuple were sent to jail this morning. Reuple abused his wife.

The question of building a sewer on Griffith street comes up to-night at the council meeting.

Charley Smith, the money thief, was taken to the prison north to-day, having recovered his health.

The will of Ernestine P. Stenner was filed to-day for probate. She leaves her property to her husband.

Robin Hood Lodge 216, Sons of St. George, meets this evening in Odd Fellows' hall, postoffice building.

Mrs. William Hogsett, nee Lula Fitzsimons, of Winchester, Ind., is the guest of her parents at Huntertown.

The Equitable Trust company sues Mary A. Beck et al. on a foreclosure. S. R. Alden is counsel for the claimant.

Mr. A. Parnin, of Aboite township, yesterday purchased of John Grosjean, of Arcola, the Lammele kiln right for $200.

The commissioners yesterday settled with seven trustees, and began work this morning by granting thirty-seven liquor licences.

The Fort Wayne Commandery will go to Columbia City Friday at noon. The funeral of the late Sir Knight Carr occurs at 2 o'clock.

Chas. Humphreys, formerly with C. Morgenroth, at Bellfountain, Ohio, has accepted a position with Stewart & Hahn, of this city.

The council is now asked to examine into the merits of fire brick pavement. The street committee will report on the different pavements to-night.

The Summit City Building and Loan association met last night and sold shares amounting to $1,584. The association is booming and rapidly filling up.

The regular weekly cottage meeting of the R. R. Y. M. C. A. will be held this evening at 7:30 at the residence of G. R. Hench, 383 East Wayne street. Come and bring your friends.

Everybody should attend the social at the Christian church to-night. A good time and a good supper are assured all. Come and help the young people and have a good, social evening.

A very interesting service is anticipated at the Berry street M. E. church to-morrow evening. Professor Clippinger will have charge of the music. Everybody cordially invited. The members are requested to be present. Come early. Time, 7:30 p. m.

Wm. H. Dreier has sold to Elizabeth C. Conrad lot 5, Dreier's addition, for $400; John Bitzinger has sold to T. W. Boyd, Markus Lohner and John G. Hagert, lot 2, college addition, for $275; Henry A. Steup for $5 sold to Maria Greibel lots 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22, Rockhill's heirs addition.

Perry and Scott Galloway, who live near Crumwell, Noble county, and J. W. Grannis, of Lavonia, Lagrange county, were taken to Indianapolis Saturday evening by the government authorities, and bond was given pending grand jury action. They are charged, as THE SENTINEL explained yesterday, with smuggling blooded live stock from Canada, and at Crumwell $20,000 worth of horses were seized by the government, and the animals will be taken to Indianapolis, pending action of the court.

"Equinoctial March promises to be an unusually turbulent month this year, and there will be loss of life and property, especially in sea ports," says a weather prophet solemnly. "The first danger period is from the 5th to the 12th, during the latter portion of which there may be expected heavy rains, with hail. Tornadoes to the southwest, north and east. This disturbance will be followed by cold weather. The second period will be from the 17th to the 25th, and will be characterized by phenomenal changes and extremes of temperature in close proximity, snow storms in the north and volcanic and earthquake disturbances in the regions subject thereto. Fair weather may be looked for on dates not included in the two storm periods."

Life is worth living if one has chronic rheumatism and can't get Salvation Oil. Price 25 cents.

Cold piercing winds seldom fail to bring on a cough, cold, or hoarseness at this season, and Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup should be kept in every house.

Mr. J. E. Noble and daughter, Miss Jennie, left for New Orleans last night.

Mr. Joseph M. Clark, the merchant tailor, returned from New York at noon.

The Misses McLaughlin, who have been so pleasantly entertained by Miss Georgie Fleming, returned to their home at Cincinnati, at noon, leaving here very many friends.

Pittsburg freight train, No. 72, jumped the track at Glenville, near Upper Sandusky, at noon to-day and eight cars were wrecked. The wreck train was sent to its relief from this city.

Colonel Green, manager of the Bass foundry in St. Louis, is in the city, the guest of Mr. Jno. H. Bass. Mr. Green says business in St. Louis is picking up rapidly and good times seems to be spreading its wings over the whole country.

Bartley Campbell's celebrated spectacular play "Clio" was presented last night in a meagre way. Mr. Burleigh, of course, is a trained, scholarly actor, but his support is not capable, nor what was promised, while but a small portion of the company's gorgeous scenery was used. It is enough to test one's patience.

Building permits have been taken out by A. M. Uppleger, to build a one and one-half story frame house, on lots 6 and 7 Tresselt's addition, to cost $400; by B. After Donelson's Surrender.

I mingled very freely with the Confederate prisoners immediately after the surrender. They were, save in their officers, a rather scaly lot, dressed in their every day clothes, and looking as if just from the farm or the workshop. At the outset of the surrender they were possessed with the idea that they would be massacred. I was talking with a group of them in the streets of Dover when a gun in the hands of some Federals in the vicinity was discharged, and instantly there was consternation and anxiety on every face.

"They're commencing to shoot the prisoners," ejaculated a slender young fellow, with suddenly blanched features, close to me. I undeceived him, and told him that the Yankees were not savages and that they would all be cared for as prisoners of war. Many of the prisoners were mere boys who should have been at home under the cover of the mothers' aprons. It was savagely cold, and they were without proper covering. They were eager to know when they would be permitted to go south. I assured them that they would probably be soon exchanged or paroled, but I was mistaken. They were needed to grace the triumph of a conqueror, and were sent mainly to Chicago, where they stimulated an apathetic patriotism, and thousands of them left their bones in an indistinguishable grave near the site of Camp Douglas. I saw two steamers laden with these prisoners land at Cairo. The lower decks, the cabins and hurricane decks were thronged with them like clusters of bees. The wind swept down on them from the north, and froze the very marrow in their bones. The lines, spars and guards were covered with ice and frozen snow; it was a terrible change; they were without blankets or any protection against the cold; and in their hunger, exposure and semi-nakedness they must have infinitely missed the "sunny south."—"Poliuto" in Chicago Times.

Surprising Change in Tony.

When A. Usina left for New York a few weeks since he purchased a round trip ticket via the Charleston line, but after getting to the metropolis he took a notion to come back by rail, and disposed of his ticket to a scalper. The scalper in order to make things work straight required Tony to leave his business card, so that it could be given to whoever might purchase the ticket. It was not long before a little short, red headed man walked into the scalper's and asked him for a ticket to Palatka, when Tony's was sold him. The fellow got along all right until after he left Charleston. When he presented Tony's ticket to Purser Morgan, of the steamship City of Monticello, who happened to be an acquaintance of Tony's, that officer asked:

"Is you name A. Usina?"

"Yes, sir," replied the tourist.

"Where do you live?" asked the purser."

"At Palatka."

"What do you do there?"

"Well, I'm in business down there. Here's my card," at the same time producing the card of our well known crockery dealer.

Purser Morgan read it over and carefully eyed the stranger, when Capt. McKee happened along, and on being informed of the above conversation looked at the little fellow and said:

"Well, Tony, you must have had a 'hades' of a time in New York to have shortened you about a foot, and to have your hair turn from an ink blackness to a fiery red."—Palatka (Fla.) News.

THE HOGS.

Chicago Runs Behind on the Packing Business for February.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The winter hog packing season closed the last day of February. While Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City and other packing centers of the west turned out and increased the product, Chicago ran behind. The shortage, as against last season, being in round numbers 700,000 hogs. The cause of the shortage was, it is stated, the great strike at the stock yards and its direct and indirect market.

The gift is gold and the figure of a black bass surmounts the medal, the emblem of a net hangs from the gold piece, while two hooks extend from the sides of the shield on which is hung a minnow net. The boys are extremely pleased at the magnificent gift and this season will find them in friendly rivalry for its possession, as the angler showing the largest black bass wins the prize.

HE IS DEAD.

Henry Ward Beecher "Is no More," But His Fame Will Live For Ages—His Funeral Next Thursday.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Henry Ward Beecher died at 9:30 a. m. He began sinking slowly after midnight and the watchers at his bedside soon saw that the end was near. Mr. Beecher passed quietly away while asleep. He never recovered consciousness after paralysis stupefied his mind.

It is, of course, too early yet to announce anything definite about the funeral, but the interment will probably be in Greenwood. Mr. Beecher never bought a lot there, but his children and some of his grand children lie on Evergreen hill on the plat of Mrs. John T. Howard.

Mr. Beecher's twin babies died on the same day, when the afterwards famous preacher was young and poor and comparatively unknown. He was living at the time in Mr. Howard's house and was given a space on Evergreen hill. It is possible that Plymouth church or the citizens of Brooklyn at large will buy a plat and erect a handsome monument.

Those present at his death were Col. H. H. Beecher and his wife, his daughters, Hattie and Daisy, and son Henry Ward Beecher, Miss Edith Beecher, W. C. Beecher and wife, Rev. Samuel Scoville, Mrs. S. Scoville, daughter of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; Miss Scoville, who has just come from the Pacific slope; Miss Ballard, the Rev. S. B. Halliday and wife; Bella, the Scotch nurse, who has been with the family many years, and was the special favorite of the deceased preacher; the male nurse, Riordan St. White; E. A. Seacomb, one of the trustees of Plymouth church, and Major J. B. Pond.

Mrs. Beecher, it is said, bore up wonderfully and with marvellous courage. No crape was hung on the door; Mr. Beecher having always objected to the use of this and the gloom associated with it in the presence of death. Instead, a magnificent wreath of flowers hung from the left side of the doorway, tied up with white satin.

The funeral will take place in Greenwood on Thursday next. Some time ago, Mr. H. W. Sage, a member of Plymouth church, appropriated, by will, a sum of money to place a statue over Mr. Beecher, in Prospect park, after his decease. Mr. Quincy Ward, the well known sculptor, who is to do the work, will make to-day a plaster cast of his features.

When the end approached the family were weeping and sobbing so they could be heard all through the house. Dr. Searle stood by the bedside holding one of Mr. Beecher's hand, and at 9:30 he said: "Mr. Beecher is no more. He is dead."

It is difficult to describe the scene at this moment, notwithstanding the fact that his death was looked for and that it had been expected hourly. It seemed to come with such crushing force that the family were perfectly prostrated with grief. They could not bring themselves to the sad realization that the kindly musical voice of the husband, father and grandfather was for ever hushed and that they had only the remembrance of his kind admonitions.

Mrs. Beecher, who had borne up so bravely from the first, and who had watched so continuously at the bedside of her dying husband, was utterly broken down and when, supported by her son, Harry, she tottered from the room, she looked as if it would not be long before she would follow her beloved husband.

The news of Mr. Beecher's death spread rapidly. As a mark of respect to his memory the flags on all public buildings were placed at half mast and Mayor Whitney had the city hall bell tolled.

HIS LIFE AND WORK.

Henry Ward Beecher was born at Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813, and came of a family distinguished in the church and literature. His father, Lyman Beecher, as a minister, was fully as celebrated as his son afterward became and was the author of a number of standard religious works. His sister, Catharine Esther, was for thirty years one of the first teachers in New England and wrote numerous books on various subjects. His brothers, Edward and Thomas, were prominent clergymen and authors. His sister, Harriett, better known as Mrs. Harriett Beecher Stowe, was the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which has had a wider sale than any other work of fiction.

Henry Ward Beecher was educated at Amherst college, graduating from that institution in 1834. He studied theology at Lane seminary and in 1837 became pastor of a Presbyterian church, at Lawrenceburg, Ind. In 1839 he took charge of a church at Indianapolis. Here his talents brought him recognition and in 1847 he received a call from Plymouth church, a new Congregationalist organization in Brooklyn. He accepted the offer and from the outset he began to acquire that reputation as a pulpit orator which he maintained and increased for forty years. Under his guidance, the congregation became the largest in America. His style was fascinating and brought to his church many communicants. He always discarded the mere conventionalities of the clerical profession. In his view, humor as well as argument and exhortation had a place in a sermon. He was fond of illustration, drawing his materials from every sphere of human life and thought, and, in his manner, he was highly dramatic. Though his keen sense of humor continually manifested itself, the prevailing impression given by his discourses was one of earnestness and thought. The cardinal idea of his creed was that Christianity was not a series of philosophical dogmas, but a rule of life in every phase. Hence he never hesitated to discuss from the pulpit the great social and political questions of the day, such as slavery, intemperance, the desire of power and the greed for gain. He was an enthusiast in music, a connoisseur in art and a lover of flowers and animals. Apart from his professional labors he was a popular lecturer in lyceums, and a favorite orator at public meetings.

Before beginning to preach, Mr. Beecher edited, in 1836, a newspaper, the Cincinnati Journal, and while pastor at Indianapolis had charge of an agricultural journal, his contributions to it afterward being published under the title, "Fruits, Flowers and Farming." For nearly twenty years he was an editorial contributor to the Independent, a weekly journal published in New York, and 1861 to 1863 was its editor. His contributions to it were signed with a crossmark, and many of them were collected and published as "The Star Papers." Since 1870 he was editor of The Christian Union, a weekly paper published in New York. His regular weekly sermons, as taken down by stenographers, have been printed and published since 1859. Besides these he has published "Lectures to a Young Man," "Life Thoughts," "Sermons on Liberty and War," "The Plymouth Collection of Hymns and Tunes," "Norwood," a novel originally published in the New York Ledger, to which he was a constant contributor; "Sermons from Published and Unpublished Discourses," "Life of Christ," and "Yale Lectures on Preaching." In 1863 he visited Great Britain, with the special purpose of disabusing the British public in regard to the issues of the American civil war. His speeches exerted a wide influence and were published in London.

In 1874 came the sensational Beecher-Tilton affair which became known to all the world through the remarkable trial which followed. Of this it is not necessary to treat in detail, as its sensational features are still remembered.

Of late years Mr. Beecher has lectured much, and his liberal views upon evolution brought much criticism from orthodox circles, a fact, however, which seemed to have little effect upon the great preacher. He dismissed his critics, in his last lecture delivered, with: "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do."

In the political campaign of 1884, Mr. Beecher supported Mr. Cleveland, drawing from his political associates of a lifetime the severest criticism and abuse. Of course, he felt this, but there was that in his sunny nature which enabled him to suffer and be strong, and he gave no sign of the pain that was ruthlessly inflicted upon him. Since the close of the campaign he has not been brought before the country with greater prominence than that which has long attached to him as the greatest of America's pulpit orators, and one of the master intellects of his time.

Although in receipt of an income probably as large as that of the president of the United States, Mr. Beecher is not a rich man. His charity, which is always inclined to be on the quiet, is well known. His main possessions consist of his valuable library and an excellent farm at Peekskill, N. Y. His wife, a charming old lady, exerts no small influence in her large circle of admiring friends. His sons seem to have inherited their father's good qualities, but have chosen mercantile life in which to achieve their success.

His father, Lyman Beecher, was before him a most powerful preacher and platform orator, and Edward, his elder brother, was also noted.

GOVERNOR GRAY

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—Governor Gray is very bitter in his criticism of the action of the republican majority of the lower house. He charges that they are directly responsible for the failure of the loan and appropriation bills; that for four weeks they had these bills before them and refused to take them up, and that they adjourned early Saturday, the last day of the session, thereby making it impossible to pass any bills. Every legislature for the past twenty years has always continued in session until 12 o'clock Saturday night, and the governors always attended the sessions to receive and sign bills as soon as passed. The present house, he says, instead of remaining in session as its predecessors have done adjourned for the express purpose of defeating all necessary legislation and embarrassing the state government. This failure cripples the furnishing the new state house, the three new insane hospitals, the soldiers' monument, the soldiers' orphans' home, and the new institution of the feeble minded to be located at Fort Wayne, in addition to the proper support of the state government and the maintenance of the benevolent institutions. The senate cleared up everything before adjournment. Eighteen bills were passed and signed by the governor, and all the appropriation and other important bills would have fared likewise, but the house steadily refused to send them to the senate. The republicans declined to recognize Senator Smith for the last two weeks as presiding officer except for the purpose of securing his name to warrants for their pay.

The senate pages yesterday morning presented President Smith with a gold pen and holder, Leo Fitzpatrick and Bertie Feldheman doing the ornamental honors.

Speaker Sayre's parlors were crowded with the republican members of both houses, their ladies and others at 10 o'clock yesterday while he, in blissful ignorance of what was going on, was in another part of the building. A committee was sent out after him and when he came in, looking somewhat wild and bewildered, Representative Griffiths proceeded to present him with a beautiful gold watch, chain and charm on behalf of the republican representatives.

In the senate Saturday afternoon Mr. Sellers's $200 liquor license bill was taken up and declared passed by President Smith by a vote of 26 to 19, present and not voting 7, it being stated that the republicans were recorded as voting in the affirmative, although, as usual, they did not respond as their names were called.

The summary of bills passed by both houses and approved by the governor shows that not much has been accomplished in the way of legislation. Among these are acts of legalizing the incorporation of the towns of Bunker Hill, Tipton, Orleans, Middlebury, Huntington, Dunkirk and Pierceton. Mr. Jewett's bill requiring weekly payment to employes passed. Of the relief measures that were introduced, those were passed providing for the payment of Baker, Smith & Co. of $5,522 for steam apparatus at the insane hospital; $2,500 to W. B. Burford for printing; $500 to Levi B. Green, and other acts for the relief of Rasselas Jones, the sureties of W. K. Merrifield, Samuel Dickerson and Nathan Gillett. Among the important measures that have gone to the governor and been approved by him are the acts to establish the Indiana Soldiers' Orphan home, which carries with it an appropriation of $100,000 to erect new buildings and buy fifty acres of that portion of real estate now leased by the home; to erect the Hendricks and Colfax monuments on state grounds; to establish the Indiana School for Feeble-minded Youth at Fort Wayne, for which $60,000 for buildings, $10,000 for real estate, and $3,500 to pay teachers and maintain the children at Fort Wayne while the building is in course of construction, were appropriated; to provide for the erection of a state soldiers' monument, or monument and memorial hall, for which $200,000 is appropriated. Other bills, sent from the senate to the governor, on Saturday for his approval, and which he will probably sign, provide for the placing of the Hackelman statue in one of niches of the capitol rotunda; $3,500 for repairing the seneca and preservation of the Tippecanoe battle ground; prescribing a method of taxation of building and loan associations which exempts all but the money on hand the 1st of April of each year from tax assessment; providing for the affliction of the death penalty at the state's prisons, which requires sheriffs to take the condemned prisoners to one or the other of these prisons five days before the execution is to take place, and there is to be carried out between midnight and sunrise on the day fixed; concerning penalty for hunting in wet lands, enclosed or open, which makes it lawful for any one to hunt on these lands, notwithstanding the claims of hunting clubs to the exclusive use of the lands. Acts concerning the organization and perpetuity of voluntary associations relative to the importation of horses; authorizing cities and towns to issue bonds to refund indebtedness, referring to $200,000 of the debt of Fort Wayne, which is to be refunded at a lower rate of interest; in relation to Green River island, authorizing the governor to proceed in the federal courts toward the settlement of the claim to this island urged both by this state and Kentucky; regulating the taking up of animals and releasing a judgment in the Lagrange circuit court; requiring payment of employes in mining and manufacturing companies every two weeks in cash, which is designed to do away with the store check system; authorizing the trustees of Jamestown to compromise tax claims and amending section 10 of the drainage act of 1885, complete the bills that have passed both houses.

In addition to these the senate passed thirty-nine bills that were not referred to the house and the house passed fifty bills did not reach the senate. There were 837 bills introduced in the senate during the session.

A BAD ONE.

Nicoll, the Tailor, Burned and Three Deaths Occur From It.

NEW YORK, March 8.—A fire occurred at 5 o'clock this morning in the store of Nicoll, the tailor, in the Bowery. Before it was extinguished it caused a loss of between $50,000 and $60,000. Trains on the elevated railroad were blocked by the flames. The blockade occurred all the way down to South ferry and on the down track up to Seventeenth street. A number of passengers undertook to walk the pathway along the track and were shaken to the street below. Three were killed and seven badly injured.

ALPENA, Mich., March 8.—This morning at Carr Bros'. shingle mill, twelve miles north of here, the boiler blew up. Emory Carr was killed instantly and Waldo Carr was fatally scalded. Eugene Carr was also badly scalded. The mill was blown to pieces.

WOMAN'S WEAKNESS.

Adam Slater Asked to Wed Louise Schmidt, Whom He Betrayed.

THE SENTINEL morelist looked into Justice Ryan's docket this morning and noted: "Louise Schmidt vs. Adam Slater, paternity proceedings."

Adam won Louise, her hand and heart, and in the courtship the girl fell from grace. The remote event began to manifest shadowy proclivities, but Adam was not inclined to take to his bosom the girl he betrayed in loves meanderings. He hesitated so long that Louise doubted and accompanied by her papa, Fred Schmidt, she began proceedings in Justice Ryan's court to compel young Slater to assume fatherly responsibilities.

The young man, who is a carriage worker employed by M. L. Albrecht, asked a continuance until Saturday, and it is probable he will wed the girl he should have shielded from the public press. There is a moral in this tale and many a young person might profit by it.

A CRUSHER!

The Chicago Wheat Pit is the Scene of a Panic and the Shorts Are Squeezed.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 8.—11 a. m.—May wheat opened at 83½c or one-half cent higher than last night, and rose to 84½c with frantic buying by the "shorts" and heavy purchases by the "bull" operators. The market then ruled easier, sold off to opening prices and is now quoted at 83¾c.

CHICAGO, March 8, 1 p. m.—The wheat pit has been the scene of the wildest excitement to-day that has been known for years. There is now every sign that a squeeze is contemplated for May delivery advanced to 86c, but closed at 85¾c at 1 o'clock.

It is claimed that the shortage is the greatest ever known here and the statement is made that the operators here and for outside customers sold over 40,000,000 bushels additional yesterday in expectation of a big decline. San Franciscoians, New Yorkers, Cincinnatians and Chicagoians are reported back of the deal, while a large number of local dealers, New Yorkers and Englishmen are said to be "short."

The closing figures of wheat were: Cash, 80½; May, 85½; June, 84½. Corn, 39½. Oats, 29. Rye, 51. Barley, 48. Flaxseed, $1.07@1.08. Prime timothy, $1.83@1.85. Whisky, $1.18. Pork, $20.35. Lard, 7.67½.

The Illinois Central Railway company gives notice to-day of its withdrawal from all pools. It is supposed to mean a hurried collapse of all these combined.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 8.—There is great excitement over the suspension of the Maritno bank, which closed its doors to-day. No particulars.

A GREAT SCHEME.

Quite a number of gentlemen were last evening discussing the necessity of pleasure resorts here—something to attract people to Fort Wayne. Hon. Wm. Fleming was present and remarked: "I'll give the city a lake if she desires to assist me." He proposed that the council abandon the park project on the north side, and he said if the city gave him its property over there he would purchase additional ground sufficient to make a lake covering twenty-five acres. The immense sheet of water he would supply from the feeder canal, giving to Fort Wayne one of the finest lakes in northern Indiana. A drive could be graded about the water-way and the city would always be insured a water supply if it desired to utilize it.

It is rarely indeed that such a liberal proposition is made a city, and if Mr. Fleming will let it stand for a time there will be sentiment enough aroused to accept his most desirable scheme.

The Strikes.

PITTSBURG, March 8.—The situation along the Pittsburg division of the Baltimore and Ohio road to-day is practically unchanged.

MILWAUKEE, March 8.—The job printers who, with the news printers, struck week ago, returned to their cases this morning at the old scale. The newspaper printers are still out. The pressmen returned to work yesterday.

Moody's New Church Enterprise.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The announcement is made that the $250,000 guarantee fund asked by D. L. Moody to found in Chicago a training school for missionaries has been fully subscribed. Among the subscribers are the following: John V. Farwell, $100,000; Mrs. George McCormick, $50,000; Marshal Field, $10,000, and T. W. Harvey, $10,000.

Killed a Burglar.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 8.—C. E. Sutton, who lives with his grandmother, shot and instantly killed a would-be burglar last night.

Death of Mrs. Mary O. Conger.

Died, in this city, Tuesday morning, Mrs. Mary O. Conger, aged sixty-five years. Funeral, Thursday, at 2 p. m. Services at the English Lutheran church.

Mrs. Conger is the mother of Mrs. F. A. Gorham, of Grand Rapids, and leaves a wide circle of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was universally beloved for queenly virtues.

No pen can do justice to so good a woman, nor can we too truthfully picture the grandeur of her character. Tributes sweeter and more tender than flowers will follow her to the grave.

OFFICIAL PAPER COUNTY AND CITY.

TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1887.

AN effort is being made in California to reorganize the American party in time for the next election. Last year 7,347 votes were cast in that State for the head of the American ticket.

A MAN who died near Springfield, Mass., a few days ago, bequeathed his horse, cat, cow, and fowls to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and also $2,000, stipulating that the society should take good care of the animals until they died.

AT Rondout, N. Y., a few days ago, a bull pup was put into a box with five big rats. The life of four of them was shaken out in a minute, but when the fifth rat crawled slowly toward the pup and actually held up its forepaws as if begging for its life, the dog couldn't be induced to touch it.

IT is predicted that the "Star of Bethlehem" will appear this year for the sixth time since the birth of Christ. This star is said to appear directly north of the North star, and to be visible, in its dazzling light, at noonday. It is a solar orb, many times the magnitude of our sun, whose orbit is yet uncalculated by any astronomer.

PRESIDENTIAL combinations for 1888 spoken of in hotel lobbies and on the street are "Blaine and Foraker," "Hill and Holman, "Cleveland and Voorhees," "Sherman and Hiscock," Hawley and Harrison," "Carlisle and Hewitt," "Blaine and Carr," "Carlisle and Waller," and many others of a less pertinent and less permanent character.

THE catering at a recent legislative reception in Augusta, Me., is said to have been in keeping with other arrangements for the affair. A Bangor lady who attended gave a friend the following graphic description of the bill of fare: "Very dry sandwiches, very bad cake, wet water, very poor ice-cream, and coffee of the same quality."

ROBERT REAM, brother to Vinnie Ream Hoxie, the sculptress, recently died at Fort Worth, Tex. He was a noted character in the Indian Territory for more than twenty years, being an adopted citizen of the Choctaw tribe. He was a man of nerve and was particularly noted for killing Ben Jones, the worst desperado the Indian Territory ever produced, at McAllistow. He was never punished for it, the general verdict being that he had performed a righteous act.

PHILIP BOURKE MARSTON, the blind poet, is dead in England at the age of 36. He was the son of John Westland Marston, author of "The Patrician's Daughter," "Strathmore," and many other dramas. He has written much, and often of late years for American magazines. Personally he was an attractive and interesting man, and has been beloved by womankind ever since the day when he lay in his cradle and Dinah Maria Mulock apostrophized him in the melodious strains of "Philip, My King."

CAPTAIN PANINTINE, of the Russian army, jilted a daughter of General Lazareff and married some one else. This was regarded as such an insult by the Lazareff family that one of the young lady's brothers challenged Captain Panintine and killed him. The matter being referred to the Czar he ordered it to be tried in accordance with the Russian law, which provides that if the person who has provoked his adversary to conflict kills the latter he shall be imprisoned for six years and eight months; but that if the challenger is killed by the challenged he shall be imprisoned for only two years and six months. The interesting part in this case was to know which of the two parties should be considered to have provoked the duel; and as it was eventually decided in M. Lazareff's favor he escaped with the lesser penalty.

IN the room of a miser physician who died in New York City a few days ago were found hundreds of empty bottles and packages, which showed that for many months he had lived on the various nutritious articles widely advertised in the medical journals. This had cost him nothing, for he had taken advantage of the sharp rivalry in wares of this kind, and had written to the proprietors for samples, implying that he might require large quantities if the trial proved successful. His name appeared in the list of regular practitioners, his requests were freely granted, and he obtained all sorts of cereal foods, wines, malt preparations, koumiss, and tonics. His peculiar diet may have killed him, for he died of a gastric disease.

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

FORCING TOWNS TO MOVE.

ARBITRARY WAYS OF THE RAILROAD FOLKS IN THE FAR WEST.

A recent arrival here is Town Lot Brady, who has earned his name by his long career as a dealer in town lots. The old man is not looking as prosperous as he used to, and it is evident that times are not as they were with him. Relating his experiences last night, he said: "The town site business isn't what it was. Before the railroads came into this country I had no difficulty in calling the turn on a town every time. I knew just where they would be built. I have made the location of towns a study for more than thirty years. When I go into a new country I just look the ground over, and, taking everything into consideration, I soon come to the conclusion where the town ought to be. Ninety-nine times in a hundred, if nothing out of the ordinary happens to prevent, the town will grow just where it ought to. I've seen that tried and I know. When I have located the town site and made arrangements with a few interested parties to take hold of the matter my duty is done. I have always made it a point to take a few lots, generally on the corners, and have left the rest to the other fellows. I have been called in more than a hundred times by men who were about to locate a town and who wanted the judgment of an expert on the place to be chosen. In such cases I always demand about four of the best lots in town, and I get them, too.

ABOUT SO FAR APART.

"You can set it down as a fact that towns in a new country will be about so far apart. The lay of the land has something to do with the matter, but not so much as many people suppose. I know some of the best towns in the west that are on about the poorest sites that could be selected. You've got to take a great many other things into view. Now, if there is no railroad you must get a map and find out about how the roads are running, how far it is to the nearest one, and from what direction the first road to be built in the natural order of things will come from. When you've got that settled take a trip around the country and find out if it will support a population and what kind of a population. After that see the owners of the land lying around and try and fix up a scheme with them. If they take kindly to the notion of laying out a town you will not have any more trouble. It is easy enough to get people interested in a new town after you have found a place for it on the map. Before the days of railroads out here I made money, but I can't do it now.

"I had my pile invested in the town of Arbordale down here, and it was about the finest layout for a city that I ever saw; but when the railroad came through the managers put their tracks right through the town and announced that they would have a station four miles west of it. You see, they had bought a farm down there, and they were going to have a town of their own. When I heard of that I called on the gentlemen and remonstrated. I told them that Arbordale was the metropolis of that section and that an attempt to ignore it would bring ruin to its citizens, particularly me, but they only laughed and wanted to know about how much we would pay to have the station located there.

THEY ONLY LAUGHED.

"I was rather brash then—in fact, I hadn't so much experience as I have had since—and I told them we wouldn't give them a blame cent; we'd see their old road thrown into bankruptcy first. I threatened them with the loss of all the business of Arbordale, and asked them if they knew what a risk they were running in ignoring the best town in that section. But they only laughed, and said they were sorry that they could not make some arrangement with me. It was a rule of modern railroading to put the stations about so far apart, and as Arbordale was not in the right place for a railroad town, it would have to move up out of the wet.

"Well, sir, do you believe it, that road hadn't been running two weeks before Arbordale began to move. Everything was on wheels. The hotel went first, and then the saloons and concert halls skipped. Pretty soon the schoolhouse went, then the private houses, to be followed last of all by the church. The last time I was down there not a building remained that could be moved, and the only thing that was left to indicate the existence of the place was a lot of holes in the ground. My corner lots were all there, you bet, but as they are not worth more than $5 an acre I thought I would not bother with them. Now that trick has been played on me several times. That isn't the only town that has moved right away from me under the influence of the railroaders. They are probably the dandy town site men. I used to think that I was some in that line, but not now. And the worst of it is that ordinarily you can't reason with them at all. They know that they have got the call on you, and they work the thing for all it is worth. They want the whole hog, as I found out later on."—Nebraska Cor. New York Sun.

Daniel Webster's Intellect.

Daniel Webster always attracted crowds to the small galleries of the old senate chamber when it was known that he was to speak. The spectators would gaze intently upon his noble head, grander than the grandest in Raphael's picture of Paul preaching in Athens, and feel that they were in an uncommon presence, and they would sit entranced when his rich voice echoed through the chamber like a flood of old cathedral music. Mr. Webster's mind might have been compared to a steam engine erected at the mouth of a rich and exhaustless mine, which goes on working and working, and at every revolution of its motions brings up rich and precious ore. His vigorous intellect seized and retained everything which his disciplined taste selected to be used when occasion demanded.—Ben: Perley Poore.

The Poker Player Betrayed.

"Oh, no, your business is not such a humdrum one as you might suppose, and we have your funny little incidents just the same as other people," said the owner of a well known laundry. "I'll just bet you the good cigars," continued he, "that I can tell you every three out of five men who send their linen to our place who play poker. You may smile if you like, but it is true just the same, and I'll tell you how. Have you never sat in a little game and seen a man charge up some one at the table with a 'shy,' and mark it on his cuff. I have many a time, and we receive lots of such indications that some of our customers gamble a little occasionally."—Buffalo Courier.

WASHINGTON MARRIAGE MARKET.

A Good Place in Which to Seek Wives. How Matches Are Made.

"Washington is going to be chock full of marriageable ladies this winter," said a pretty little Southern widow the other evening. "Do you know," she continued, showing a keen interest in the subject, "that this is the greatest match making city in the universe? No? Well, it's true. More ladies come here to get married than to half a dozen other cities of the same population. It is because of the pleasant society, the beauty of the surroundings and the gallantry of the city. All the ladies want to live here; and I don't blame them. I have been coming here for three winters—but not for the purpose I mention."

"Do you think this a desirable place to hunt husbands?"

"I cannot say so," and a lill of disappointment gleamed in her blessed deep black eye and the flush mounted her velvety cheeks. "But 'tis a good place for men to seek wives. I know you must have seen that much. The ladies are handsome and accomplished, as a rule, and hundreds of them have wealth and social standing. As I said, they are smitten with the glare of the capital and the abandon of the people. If there is anything a lady likes it is ease and elegance, plenty of time and an abundance of gayety. These, with a gallant and bright husb—gentleman, make it so nice. I have attended receptions, dinners and all manner of social entertainments in Paris and London—I was educated at the capital of France—but there is nothing so lastingly pleasant as you have in Washington."

"I cannot say that there are, but you must remember that the matches made here are culminated elsewhere. The ladies come here, meet residents or visitors, court, make engagements, then go home and get married. O! its jolly, courting in Washington—so different from other places. There is romance in everything. A woman that couldn't plot an elopement here, under the glitter of the White House, the roar and bustle of the Capitol, and to the music of the dining room and ball, isn't worth having. But, seriously, I never heard of so many ladies who wanted to get married as are here now. I know them and see them everywhere I go—widows, orphans, daughters of magnates, statesmen and potentates. Lots of men come here to look for wives, but there is not one of them to ten ladies who are looking for husbands. The hotels, aristocratic boarding houses, the flats and the private residences are full of them. Scores are in every square. My! 'water, water everywhere, and none to drink!' And the discouraging feature is these ladies are becoming more plentiful every year. Great families of them come in a bunch, put up at the fashionable places or rent houses and stay the season out. An acceptable man could marry twice a week. From the inflow of familiar faces it looks like the market would be better supplied this short season than ever before."—Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.

A Curious Washington Character.

"That's Belle Boyd. You know Belle Boyd!" said the old man, taking an old painting in a gilt frame out of a dirty corner and carefully wiping the dust off, as he held it up before a reporter. "She wasn't a bad looking girl as far as looks goes." He examined it critically at arm's length. "But," he added, "she was a terror. This was taken by a famous artist while she was in the old Capitol. You know they never put her there until the war was nearly over, and I expect it was more for revenge than anything. Some of the officers, I think, were in love with her and they had a falling out. You know they said she was a rebel spy. She was a clever woman, I guess, and mighty reckless. They say she was of service to the Confederacy. This is a good picture of her. How'd I get it? I don't know. It came with the rest of the things. Look about you. I don't know how they got here. They have just accumulated."

The old man is a dealer in, or rather collector of, all sorts of old "traps." The "store" looks like an attic that has outlived many generations, or rather like a whole colony of attics. People whose daily walks take them that way often see the old man sitting in front of his door with his back to the pavement and his face turned in respectful attention to the collection of curious old pictures and books which are piled on each side of the door nearly up to the second story. Every day the pile has grown bigger, the books huddling together as if trying to look over each other's shoulders at the odd things in the windows. The old man is nearly always alone and silent. But he is not always sitting with his back to the street. Sometimes he is dusting the old books or rubbing a greased rag over the face of some oil painting that has almost passed out of sight. Occasionally some lady stops to look at the books or peep into the dark store. Sometimes they venture inside, but he never says a word, and after looking around they go away wondering at what they have seen.—Washington Star.

Dynamite Not So Dangerous.

"Dynamite is not nearly so dangerous a substance as people suppose," said Mr. Schrader, of the Atlantic Dynamite company, to a reporter. "We have been engaged for over seventeen years in its manufacture and have had but two explosions in our factory. With experienced workmen safety is almost assured. People have an erroneous idea concerning its destructive qualities. Why, it cannot compare with ordinary black powder as a destroyer. Take, for example, the attempt made to blow up the British houses of parliament. If the same amount of black powder had been used the effect would have been far more disastrous. Why? Because dynamite is instantaneous and local in its action, while powder is slower in expansion and more far reaching in its destruction. Dynamite grinds into atoms everything within its reach. Powder breaks things into pieces, but does not atomize them. Dynamite will not explode in a fire. It is exploded only by concussion."

"Then how does it happen that dynamite projectiles thrown from guns and mortars escape exploding in the concussion of the powder used in projecting them?"

"That is easily explained. At the base of the cartridge is affixed a layer of rubber which breaks the force of the concussion. It is when it strikes and the cap attached to the head of it explodes that the cartridge goes off. This is the only way that dynamite can be employed in guns. If it were used like powder it would blow the gun to atoms."—New York Mail and Express.

The Missouri court of appeals has decided that contracts and conversation over a telephone wire are binding.

Demand for Small Change.

"The demand for small bills and coins," says a Philadelphia sub-treasury official, "is such that we cannot begin to supply $1 and $2 bills as fast as they are called for, and we are away behind in the matter of small change—pennies, five cent pieces, dimes, quarters and half dollar bits. One of the peculiarities of the day is the new demand from the south and southwest for pennies. Heretofore the people in that part of the country have had no use for one cent pieces; they have rather inclined to sneer at such money; but the great growth of liveliness in trade down there seems to have changed affairs materially. And all over the country it would seem as if this demand for small currency is a fair indication that there is a boom in retail business. That would explain the demand for this new abundance of small money, a demand that the public really does not appreciate, so great is it."—Chicago Times.

Negro Generosity.

Bill Arp mentions a characteristic trait of the negro—he will divide—he never turns a fellow darky from his door. He is not going to hunt him up to feed him, but he won't refuse him. In fact, he will hide out his supplies if he can and resort to strategy. I have known one to ask another for a chaw of tobacco when he himself had a whole plug in his pocket. John killed his pig last night after dark to keep the 'nabors from finding out he had fresh pork, but they will get some of it. John says they can smell like buzzards, and he is bound to have right smart company next Sunday, for dey will come drappin' in shore.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Valuable Dog.

Miss de Crashville (speaking of her poodle)—He isn't an Adonis, but you know he saved papa's life once, and we think the world of him.

Mr. de Topp—Why, yes, you must. What were the circumstances?

Miss de Crashville—Well, you see, one of our neighbors threatened to shoot papa if he didn't keep Clawed out of his yard.

Mr. de Topp (interestedly)—Yes!

What is Left.

A theatrical manager says he intends to "keep on changing and improving" a certain play "until it perfectly conforms to the public demands." It is believed that if he carries out his intentions there will be nothing left of the play but a strong ballet, two or three bloodhounds, a pair of mules and about $30,000 worth of diamonds and Worth dresses.—Norristown Herald.

A Singular Southern Industry.

According to a correspondent of The New York Commercial Advertiser, the largest house in the world engaged in the collection of medicinal herbs, roots, barks, gums and berries is conducted by two brothers at Statesville, N. C.

These brothers do a business of $100,000 a year, handling more than 2,000 varieties, weighing upwards of 2,000,000 pounds. Shortly after the war they started business in a very small way. At first they dealt chiefly in ginseng, for which there is always a big demand in China. Snakeroot was also looked after, and the business grew to such an extent that the brothers secured the services of an eminent botanist.

The traffic increased, until 40,000 persons are kept busy collecting herbs and delivering them to 400 or 500 different stores scattered over some thirty counties in western North Carolina. These collectors are chiefly women, children and old men.—Atlanta Constitution.

It may save your life, for it cures your cold and cough, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents.

Mr. Robert Jutcliffe, late of Birmingham, England, now a resident of Baltimore, claims:—"For neuralgia Salvation Oil is worth its weight in gold.

A number of towns located on Long Island were slightly shaken, about 4:15 yesterday afternoon, by earthquake tremors.

How Pale You Are!

Is frequently the exclamation of one lady to another. The fact is not a pleasant one to have mention, but still the act may be a kindly one, for it sets the one addressed to thinking, apprises her of the fact that she is not in good health and leads her to seek a reason therefor. Pallor is almost always attendant upon the first stages of consumption. The system is enfeebled and the blood is impoverished. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Medical Discovery" will act as a tonic upon the system, will enrich the impoverished blood and restore roses to the cheek.

There was too much rowdyism in the gallery at the Temple last night and Manager Simonson cannot afford to have it repeated.

Senator J. M. Barrett yesterday telegraphed THE SENTINEL that Governor Gray had signed the bill locating at Fort Wayne the asylum for feeble-minded persons. It is now a law.

Mr. W. P. Chapman has leased the south half of Capt. J. B. White's block and will move the Adams and American express offices to that point. It is an elegant place for the express business.

Mrs. A. J. Langohr and sons, Charles and Henry, and Miss Pauline Gross, returned from Columbia City yesterday where they were at the bedside of a sick child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Langohr.

It is understood that the Nickel Plate fast freight line will be run over the West Shore instead of the New York Central, commencing with April 1. Over the New York Central only color lines will be run.

It will interest the members of the Women's G. A. R. Relief corps here to know that of the forty-seven corps of the department nearly two-thirds have indorsed the convention's action by official recognition of the new state department, and others have sent letters pledging support.

Mr. Ulrich Stotz last night engaged a gang of men and felled the hickory pole in front of his house of call. Mr. Stotz is not "struck" on campaign poles and the emblem of democracy will no longer wave over his mansion, much to the regret of his patrons who doted to dwell on the beauties of the campaign as they fell on the genial Ulrich.

As the time approaches for the inter-state law to take effect, rates begin to show signs of a general demoralization, with the understanding that the new law will steady them up again. The reason some roads have for this is that they can thus secure something of a patronage before they are shut off by the new law, and other lines are compelled to follow in order to retain their custom. There are prospects of a lively freight war this month.

Hon. Henry Monning will go to Michigan City Monday and Tuesday sits as a member of the board of directors for the last time unless Governor Gray reappoints him. The matter has not been canvassed and Mr. Monning agrees with his colleagues that if their management does not deserve endorsement at the hands of the governor they do not want it. The legislature did not reach consideration of the management of the state institutions and the retention of the present gentlemen in control remains entirely with Governor Gray, who can reappoint and reject as he pleases.

Next Thursday will be the Jewish holiday of mirth and gladness—Purim. It is one of the oldest holidays in the history of this ancient people. The event which it commemorates is familiar to every well informed person, for all have heard the story of Esther, and how her beauty saved the Jewish people. The anniversary of the event has ever since been observed by them, and the evening of that day they give to pursuits of pleasure. It is celebrated somewhat as Hallow E'en. The Hebrew boy is free to do all the mischievious things, if he is willing to take the risk of getting spanked should he go so far as to arouse parental displeasure. He generally goes about arrayed in mask and comic costume, and for his queer antics and roguish tricks expects to be rewarded with candies and fruits.

IT'S A BOOM.

The Business Men's Exchange Awakens an Interest in Developing Fort Wayne—Manufactories Offered Us.

There was altogether an important and spirited session of the Business Men's exchange last night. The seating capacity of the parlors was tested and it is no idle gossip to say that a new era is dawning on us.

Mr. E. J. Pennington, who now conducts a manufactory of wood working machines at Defiance, was at the meeting. Mr. P. A. Randall spoke for him, and said Mr. Pennington wanted to change his business first because the Defiance foundry could not supply his demands and secondly because he could build his machines cheaper in this city and enjoy better shipping facilities. He did a business last year approaching $100,000 and desired to turn in his patents, his patterns, his machines, etc., into a stock company at $15,000, if the citizens of Fort Wayne took additional subscriptions of $20,000 to erect shops and purchase ground. Mr. Pennington would guarantee by his stock that the investments in the company would pay ten per cent., leave a surplus and do a business approaching $200,000 per annum.

Quite a number of gentlemen attested to the excellence of Mr. Pennington's inventions and very promptly Mr. A. D. Cressler, Mr. P. A. Randall, Mr. John C. Peters and others asserted their willingness to head a company with a capital stock of $50,000. Messrs. P. A. Randall, E. T. McDonald, J. B. Monning and John Dreibelbiss were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions.

Mr. Frank Alderman presented for signatures a petition to the county commissioners asking them to provide for an election on the question of freeing the toll roads in the county. The petition is numerously signed by the leading property owners and will be presented to the commissioners during the present session.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. G. W. Seavy announced as a settled fact that President Metcalfe, of the Sydney (Ohio) Manufacturing company, was coming to Fort Wayne with a capital of $100,000 to establish a wholesale grocery. He added that the Sydney company was talking of transferring their manufactory to Toledo and believed that by a proper effort they could be directed here, especially in view of the fact that the president of the company will locate in Fort Wayne.

The Sydney company manufactures pots, skillets and hollow ware. The exchange will correspond with the firm.

A Bad Week for Butler.

BUTLER, Ind., March 8.—The week just closed has been an eventful one for Butler. A row in a saloon resulted in the breaking of a $100 mirror. Kirby Smith with open knife chased Bill Reed a half mile or less down the railroad. Mrs. P. P. Her attempted to commit suicide. The Hotel Aldrich was set on fire by an incendiary, who was caught by Mell Wilkinson while escaping, but being a powerful man, he kicked his captor and while he was unconscious, made good his escape, but the hotel was saved from destruction by timely aid and last but not least, Mr. Kennedy, of one our saw-mills, had a finger cut off by a circulara circular saw.

A certain physician was asked if he could recommend Pond's Extract. He was silent for a moment, and then replied: "My dear friend, some of the most distinguished physicians and surgeons in Europe and America have recommended Pond's Extract for subduing Pain and Inflammation, and the Paris Medical Society reported its power over Hemorrhages of all sorts as remarkable." But you must get the genuine Pond's Extract.

The value of the cotton goods produced throughout the world is estimated at $1,750,000,000.

Too Good a Preacher.

"How do you like that new minister of yours?" asked Deacon Snaggs of Elder Berry.

"I'm afraid he's too powerful. We can't stand it."

"How's that?"

"Well, you see, he preached a trial sermon on salvation, and every unrepentant sinner in the audience came up in front and joined the church. So we engaged him. The next Sunday he preached on the duty of marriage, and every old bachelor and widower in the congregation hooked on to an old maid and was married before Saturday night. He got a $5 fee out of every couple. But the worst came last Sunday. He preached upon the duty of giving all to the Lord, and I hope I may never if two deacons didn't sprain their backs carrying around the contribution baskets, they were so loaded down with silver. When the congregation was dismissed it was just like leaving a faro bank—there wasn't a cent in the crowd. The house had all the money. We can't stand such eloquence."—Washington Critic.

The Toothsome Spare Rib.

"What has become of the toothsome spare rib we used to hear so much about in our infancy?" repeated a Madison street butcher as he boosted a hind quarter of beef upon a block. "The spare rib, my friend, has been tabooed in the north. For years and years it was looked upon with high favor as a dainty morsel for a Sunday dinner and Thanksgiving feast, but of late years there has been little or no demand for the 'superfluous bone.' The rest of the porker, however, finds ready sale in our markets. Throw the spare ribs away? Oh, bless you, no. Ever hear of a butcher flinging anything away? No, no. The spare ribs are shipped south by the car load, where they are highly prized by the negro. Being almost as succulent and savory as 'possum or coon, the colored people have little trouble in eking out a pretty fair sort of living off the despised rib, which is sold to them at a very moderate price."—Chicago Herald.

That tired feeling and loss of appetite are entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine. Try it and see.

A Slight Cold, if neglected, often attacks the lungs. Brown's Bronchial Troches give sure and immediate relief. Sold only in boxes. Price, 25 cents.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE CITY NEWS.

The municipal legislators meet to-night.

Painting on lace is the latest amateur idea.

Professor Sam Kimball is confined to his room with erysipelas.

Mr. Charley Falk was the guest of A. Salinger, at Lafayette, over Sunday.

The young people of the Christian church give a social at the parlors of the edifice to-night.

Hon. William Carr, of Columbia City, is dead. The Fort Wayne commandery will attend his funeral Friday next.

Mr. F. N. Douglass, of South Bend, has been selected and accepted the position of secretary of the state Y. M. C. A.

Drs. S. C. Metcalfe and J. S. Hetrick are at Cleveland to attend the commencement of the Western Reserve college, their alma mater.

Engineer Pardee, of the Nickel Plate, has returned from Pennsylvania. Mr. Pardee announces the return of his office clerk, Mr. J. W. Woodrow.

Tickets are going like hot cakes for the Y. M. C. A. concert. Mr. Page promises one of the best home entertainments ever given in the Temple.

A wag suggests that if the high hats continue to get much higher at theaters that parquet seats will sell for twenty-five cents and gallery seats for a dollar.

The Morton club has arranged to give Col. R. S. Robertson a reception Saturday night. Speaker Sayre, who has the gubernatorial bee in his bonnet, will attend.

The Indianapolis News says: "Mrs. R. S. Robertson and Mrs. R. J. Fisher, of Fort Wayne, were visitors at the house this morning, and held an informal reception there."

J. Geo. Strodel, Capt. C. Heitler, John Renss, Frank Rabe and C. Schaffer, is the committee appointed to select a site for the proposed Sengerbund block referred to yesterday.

Train 78 on the Wabash broke in two at Lebanon yesterday morning in what is called the "hole." The two parts ran together, but beyond a few drawbars knocked out the damage was slight.

Billy Wilkinson's new star, Beatrice Lick, is spoken of most flatteringly wherever she goes. She is making a great success of "Infatuation." Mr. Wilkinson used to manage the Academy.

The young men of the Berry street M. E. church will hold a meeting in the library room of the church at the close of the prayer meeting on to-morrow evening. All the young men are requested to be present.

Ida Burroughs has succeeded Lillian Lee as leading woman with W. J. Scanlan. Miss Lee is in ill health. Scanlan will open next season in San Francisco. He and his company will travel in a special car. Better companies walk.

The "Clio" party did not put up half of their scenery here and it is to be regretted they did not send the ballet on to Richmond with them. Such a collection of superannuated females could not well be collected outside of Michigan.

Invitations are out for the marriage March 17, of Miss Frances Beighler, daughter of Mr. John Beighler, of Lafayette township, and Mr. Frederick Schearer, a worthy young farmer of Pleasant township. The young people are well and favorably known and the wedding will be quite an affair.

Elkhart has subscribed $4,000 and Goshen $3,000 to bore for natural gas. About all the other towns around us are moving in the matter. It is of interest to know that Mr. G. W. Seavy has assurance that the DePauw glass works, of New Albany, would be removed to Fort Wayne if natural gas sufficient to supply the works was secured at this point.

Mary Baker, the famous White county fasting girl, has lapsed into former condition. At the end of the 105th day the patient took bits of jelly, paregoric and water, and it was believed that she would speedily recover. Dr. Reed, of Monon, Miss Baker's physician, says no food is retained by the faster and as the flesh is wasted away, nothing now remains to sustain life. Death is again looked for at any moment. This unparalleled fast began last October.

Last evening there was organized the Arabian council of the grand order of Orient, latitude 41° composed of the members of Knights of Pythias. The following grand officers were elected; Grand orient, Chas. H. Eckart; grand vice-orient, J. M. Smith; grand past orient, Jud. M. Taylor; grand prophet, Martin M. Minch; grand herald, Harry N. Ball; grand secretary, Chas. E. Graves; grand treasurer, Louis Hazzard; grand wardsman, John Conahan; grand vidette, Geo. Oppelt; grand C. A. P., Adam Imbody.

The hay and wood market is deserted.

The new fire alarm boxes were all hung up to-day.

William S. Connett and his mother left for Denver, Col., this morning.

Treasurer Borghoff and Clerk Rockhill will submit their monthly reports to-night.

Jack Griffin and John Reuple were sent to jail this morning. Reuple abused his wife.

The question of building a sewer on Griffith street comes up to-night at the council meeting.

The will of Ernestine T. Stenner was filed to-day for probate. She leaves her property to her husband.

Robin Hood Lodge 216, Sons of St. George, meets this evening in Odd Fellows' hall, postoffice building.

Mrs. William Hogsett, nee Lula Fitzsimons, of Winchester, Ind., is the guest of her parents at Huntertown.

The Equitable Trust company sues Mary A. Beck et al. on a foreclosure. S. R. Alden is counsel for the claimant.

Mr. A. Parnin, of Aboite township, yesterday purchased of John Groejean, of Arcola, the Lammele kiln right for $200.

The commissioners yesterday settled with seven trustees, and began work this morning by granting thirty-seven liquor licences.

The Fort Wayne Commandery will go to Columbia City Friday at noon. The funeral of the late Sir Knight Carr occurs at 2 o'clock.

Perry and Scott Galloway, who live near Crumwell, Noble county, and J. W. Granuis, of Lavonia, Dagrange county, were taken to Indianapolis Saturday evening by the government authorities, and bond was given pending grand jury action. They are charged, on THE SENTINEL explained yesterday, with smuggling blooded live stock from Canada, and at Crumwell $20,000 worth of horses were seized by the government, and the animals will be taken to Indianapolis, pending action of the court.

"Equinoctial March promises to be an unusually turbulent month this year, and there will be loss of life and property, especially in sea ports," says a weather prophet solemnly. "The first danger period is from the 5th to the 12th, during the latter portion of which there may be expected heavy rains, with hail. Tornadoes to the southwest, north and east. This disturbance will be followed by cold weather. The second period will be from the 17th to the 25th, and will be characterized by phenomenal changes and extremes of temperature in close proximity, snow storms in the north and volcanic and earthquake disturbances in the regions subject thereto. Fair weather may be looked for on dates not included in the two storm periods."

Bartley Campbell's celebrated spectacular play "Clio" was presented last night in a meagre way. Mr. Burleigh, of course, is a trained, scholarly actor, but his support is not capable, nor what was promised, while but a small portion of the company's gorgeous scenery was used. It is enough to test one's patience.

After Donelson's Surrender.

I mingled very freely with the Confederate prisoners immediately after the surrender. They were, save in their officers, a rather seedy lot, dressed in their every day clothes, and looking as if just from the farm or the workshop. At the outset of the surrender they were possessed with the idea that they would be massacred. I was talking with a group of them in the streets of Dover when a gun in the hands of some Federals in the vicinity was discharged, and instantly there was consternation and anxiety on every face.

"They're commencing to shoot the prisoners," ejaculated a slender young fellow, with suddenly blanched features, close to me. I undeceived him, and told him that the Yankees were not savages and that they would all be cared for as prisoners of war. Many of the prisoners were mere boys who should have been at home under the cover of the mothers' arms. It was savagely cold, and they were without proper covering. They were eager to know when they would be permitted to go south. I assured them that they would probably be soon exchanged or paroled, but I was mistaken. They were needed to grace the triumph of a conqueror, and were sent mainly to Chicago, where they stimulated an apathetic patriotism, and thousands of them left their bones in an indistinguishable grave near the site of Camp Douglas. I saw two steamers laden with these prisoners land at Cairo. The lower decks, the cabins and hurricane decks were thronged with them like clusters of bees. The wind swept down on them from the north, and froze the very marrow in their bones. The lines, spars and guards were covered with ice and frozen snow; it was a terrible change; they were without blankets or any protection against the cold; and in their hunger, exposure and semi-nakedness they must have infinitely missed the "sunny south." —"Pollute" in Chicago Times.

Surprising Change in Tony.

"When A. Usina left for New York a few weeks since he purchased a round trip ticket via the Charleston line, but after getting to the metropolis he took a notion to come back by rail, and disposed of his ticket to a scalper. The scalper in order to make things work straight required Tony to leave his business card, so that it could be given to whoever might purchase the ticket. It was not long before a little short, red headed man walked into the scalper's and asked him for a ticket to Palatka, when Tony's was sold him. The fellow got along all right until after he left Charleston. When he presented Tony's ticket to Purser Morgan, of the steamship City of Monticello, who happened to be an acquaintance of Tony's, that officer asked:

"Is you name A. Usina?"

"Yes, sir," replied the tourist.

"Where do you live?" asked the purser."

"At Palatka."

"What do you do there?"

"Well, I'm in business down there. Here's my card," at the same time producing the card of our well known crockery dealer.

Purser Morgan read it over and carefully eyed the stranger, when Capt. McKee happened along, and on being informed of the above conversation looked at the little fellow and said:

"Well, Tony, you must have had a 'hades' of a time in New York to have shortened you about a foot, and to have your hair turn from an ink blackness to a fiery red."—Palatka (Fla.) News.
